Allies Close Big Gap In Northwest

Communist Losses In Heavy Fight For Battle Mountain Soaring High

TOKYO (AP)—Allied troops closed a dangerously big hole in the northeastern Korea warfront today. But they lost scarred Battle Mountain again in the southwest to superior North Korean forces.

The five-mile gap in the northeastern front was closed by South Korean troops, backed by U.S. planes. They linked forces in moves between Yongchon and Kyongju, road junction towns east of Taegu, central front city imperilled by 50,000 Communists from the north. The closing of the rupture in the line eased some of the pressure on Taegu.

First British Soldier Slain In Korean War

TOKYO (CP)—First death in action of a British soldier in Korea was reported in dispatches received here today.

A correspondent with the British troops reported that the soldier, a member of the Middlesex Regiment, was buried today with full military honors under the United Nations flag at the cemetery of the United States 1st Cavalry Division. He was killed on patrol in Communist territory.

In Tokyo Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters today listed British casualties as two missing and 14 wounded. The announcement gave no news of the death of the soldier.

Meanwhile, British patrols today directed heavy artillery fire on roving bands of North Koreans who had infiltrated Allied lines along the Nakdong River.

EDGED THROUGH
A British Army spokesman said the Reds sifted through a 600-yard gap to the left of the British 27th Brigade's position.

Associated Press correspondent Lef Erickson reported from Korea that British patrols dropped back as much as four miles hunting for the Reds.

Batrols exchanged some fire with Red Groups, the spokesman said. The 27th Brigade repulsed light probing attacks. The Korean Reds threw mortar and artillery fire at British positions.

Supplies were dropped for a second time to British units in a rugged terrain. The spokesman said the supplies included ice to melt for drinking water because containers of water frequently break when dropped.

Bombay Police Fire On Strikers

BOMBAY (Reuters)—Police fired on striking cotton textile workers who attacked constables and passers-by and disrupted traffic today in Parel, Bombay's industrial district.

A person watching from an upper floor was killed by a stray bullet.

The disturbance began when strikers, following a violent demonstration Friday night, formed a procession and attempted to hold a meeting.

Credit Curbs To Reduce U.S. Public's Purchases

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman will broadcast to the country tonight a report on how he plans to use the broadest economic control powers ever held by a United States President.

The power grant became effective when the President signed into law Friday the control bill passed by Congress Sept. 1. It gives Mr. Truman somewhat greater authority than that held by President Roosevelt in the Second World War.

One use—to curb installment-plan buying—was invoked a few minutes after the President had signed the bill. This was a Federal Reserve Board order tightening, effective Sept. 18, credit terms that can be allowed buyers of automobiles and many other goods.

Mr. Truman himself has said he won't use his new wage-price-rationing control powers in the near future. So the credit-tightening action will reach more directly into the lives of millions of U.S. citizens than any other step now in the cards.

The credit curbs promise to clip the public's capacity to buy television sets, washing machines and other items.

Other orders to come are expected to curtail the availability of many consumer goods by directing essential materials required—such as steel and copper—to defense production.

The control program as a whole is intended to accomplish a mobilization speed-up and a check on inflation, Mr. Truman has warned that "we shall have to make many changes in our way of living and working here at home."

Proposal For Dam In B.C. Columbia River

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Magnuson (D-Wash.) wants President Truman to ask Canada for permission to build an earth dam in the upper Columbia River in B.C. to increase the power output at Grand Coulee and Bonneville dams.

Magnuson said today he would ask Mr. Truman to appeal to the Canadian government and the province of British Columbia. He said he had been asked to do so by former Senator Clarence C. Dill of Spokane, Wash.

Dill wrote Magnuson that the Kaiser Aluminum Company is reported planning to put in additional pot lines at a point where it can get needed power, instead of enlarging the Mead aluminum plant at Spokane.

Dill said the chief engineer of British Columbia had suggested water be stored behind an earth dam in the Columbia in the mountain canyons above Revelstoke. Dill said the dam could be built this fall and winter so that water could be stored for use a year hence.

Dill previously had suggested an earth-rock dam at Arrow Lakes in Canada to store water to increase power output of dams in the United States farther down the river. But he said there are plenty of mountain canyons above Arrow Lakes where water can be stored.

Control Bills Studied By M.P.'s

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons got the morning off today and it had George Drew to thank.

The Progressive Conservative leader got Prime Minister St. Laurent to agree to have the House adjourn to 3 p.m. so members could study two bills giving Trade Minister Howe control over "essential" production and the flow of consumer credit in Canada.

Copies of the bills, up for second reading—approval in principle—had been handed to members only at 10 a.m., Mr. Drew said.

These bills were of the "utmost importance" and the minimum period in which members could study them and particularly their legal wording was until 3 p.m., start of the afternoon sitting.

First Man Emerges As War Gas Masks Used

NEW CUMNOCK, Scotland (AP)—A weary, gas-masked miner—the first of 118 men trapped since last Thursday in the Knockshinnoch Castle mine—crawled through deadly black damp gas to safety shortly after noon today.

Rescue workers handed down breathing apparatus one-by-one to the other men, trapped by a cave-in 720 feet underground. Their return to daylight promised to be slow, since only one man at a time could get through the gas-filled escape tunnel punched through last night from an adjoining abandoned shaft.

Housewives in this mining town of 6,000 were asked to bring war-souvenir respirators to the mine to speed up the rescue work. Ten of the men trapped in Thursday night's massive cave-in were feared lost. Eight escaped earlier.

The first man brought to the surface grimy with coal dust and suffering from exhaustion was identified as Gibb McCaughy, 22. He was carried out on a stretcher and taken to a hospital.

He had been examined by doctors in the old mine shaft before being brought to the surface.

The rescue workers reached the trapped men Friday night, but a wall of odorless, colorless black damp gas blocked immediate escape through the tunnel that had been bored upward through 30 feet of solid coal from the old mine shaft. The men kept in touch with the surface by telephone.

Take Dangerous Alternative

At first, attempts were made to suck the deadly fumes out with big fans. But the process was too slow and the National Coal Board decided, despite the risk, to bring out the trapped men wearing breathing apparatus.

"This procedure will inevitably be prolonged over many hours and may involve some risk," a coal board statement said.

Earlier, the Coal Board had announced that since the use of the breathing apparatus required special training the risk was too great, but the fact that the process of sucking the gas out was too slow changed the plans.

Word reaching the pithead from the cave-in area was that the rest of the men would be brought up in groups of three after they scrape through the escape hole to the old shaft.

Earlier red-eyed relatives and friends had waited for word that the men had been released. Salvation Army lassies led prayer services and sang "Nearer My God to Thee."

The women of this mining village of 6,000, 30 miles south of Glasgow, opened a canteen service. Bakery shops emptied their shelves of bread and rolls to feed the waiting hundreds.

There was one known casualty, a rescue worker, Hugh Blackwood, 45, who died of a heart attack. Ten others who are missing are believed to have been caught in the avalanche of mud and peat precipitated by the collapse of the upper ground trapping the 118 whose rescue is now under way.

No Week-End Freedom For Crete's Romeo

ATHENS (AP)—With tears and heavy heart, Tassoula Petracorgi, the "Juliet" of Crete, today awaited her imprisoned Romeo's release for the beginning of their ill-starred honeymoon.

Whatever possibility there was that her fiercely-mustachioed bridegroom of one week, Constantine Kephalyannis, would be freed today was dashed after a three-minute court hearing.

Arraigned before an examining magistrate, Kephalyannis was charged formally with abduction, seduction, unlawfully carrying arms and heading a band of armed men with intent to attack or resist authorities. The prisoner asked 48 hours in which to prepare his defence and was returned to his cell.

It was six days ago that Kephalyannis, emerging with the girl he carried off to a hideout on Mount Ida and then married in a monastery, was thrown into jail here on various charges growing out of a family feud.

DUEL CHALLENGE

Adding to Tassoula's worries was the pistols-to-the-death challenge flung from prison by her husband to Manuel Bandovas, another Cretan "capitano," accused by Kephalyannis of being responsible for his troubles.

Tassoula today remained in the home of her husband's uncle. She was under heavy police guard to protect her against possible efforts by her father's clan to recapture her.

RACE GIVES GIRL $35,000

MONTREAL (CP)—The victory of Scratch II in the St. Leger Stakes at Doncaster, Eng., today was worth $35,000 to Miss Muriel Gordon of Montreal, who held a Quebec Army and Navy Veterans' sweepstake ticket on the winner.

D. Gerrie of Winnipeg came in for $20,000 with his ticket on the second place horse, Vieux Manoir.

V. A. Sage of Toronto held the ticket on Saniline, which came third. This ticket was worth $13,800.

FUTURE DOUBTFULDeer 'Adopts'
Cowichan Family

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Whatever the future holds for Yellow Horn, he will become a legend in the Cowichan Lake district.

Yellow Horn is a four-year-old buck whose fame is fast spreading as the most domesticated deer on Vancouver Island. His favorite delights are to sleep in a bed, eat at a table and to frolic with children.

The buck not so long ago adopted as his protectors Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Boyd, parents of Dr. David M. Boyd, Victoria pediatrician. Yellow Horn soon became the playmate of children and an attraction to many visitors.

The Boyds did not invite or entice Yellow Horn to their home, a few miles from Cowichan Village. He just came one day and laid down on the veranda, indicating his intention of staying.

While fond of animals, the Boyds felt that, with children around the house and garden, a buck on the premises would be somewhat of a nuisance. They made several attempts to frighten him away but Yellow Horn returned regularly for his nap on the veranda.

THE BOYDS GAVE UP
It soon became apparent Yellow Horn was not content to sleep on the hard floor of the veranda. Whenever he had an opportunity he would sneak into the house and snuggle down on a bed.

His fondness for beds extended to an empty baby's crib which he attempted to adopt as his own but, unfortunately, he found it a little too snug. Occasionally, when Mrs. Boyd forgets to close a door, she will find the buck helping himself to bread in the kitchen or feasting on a bowl of fruit in the dining-room.

So fond is he of the house and particularly of the beds, that whenever the family goes out the windows have to be barricaded to prevent Yellow Horn from making a forcible entry.

JEALOUS
The buck has also other unusual attitudes for a deer. He is very jealous of other quadrupeds straying onto the property. He will chase them out. Even Mr. Boyd's dog has a hard time coping with the deer.

"You would almost think he owned the place," says Dr. Boyd. The unusual history of Yellow Horn began four years ago as a fawn when his parents deserted him on the south side of Cowichan Lake. Kindly loggers adopted the orphan, thinking he was a doe but they soon discovered their mistake.

HORNS PAINTED
Fearing for his safety because of his sex, loggers painted the horns of the deer yellow—hence his name. They hoped that hunters would get to know him by the color of his horns and refrain from shooting.

As an added precaution, the loggers shipped the young buck to the game reserve on the south side of the lake. But Yellow Horn soon left the safety of the reserve and began visiting nearby houses. He finally decided to settle down on the Boyds' property.

"We don't think he has much of a future," said Dr. Boyd. "Some hunter is sure to shoot him one day."

Extra Two Weeks Racing For Vancouver On Again

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Vancouver will have another two weeks racing this year after all. In a direct about turn, the horsemen voted in a secret ballot late this morning to continue the racing.

Only a few hours earlier, the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association hand announced racing for the rest of 1950 was cancelled. However, a late morning settlement at which another offer from the race tracks was presented, decided to go on with the remaining 14 days of racing for Vancouver at Lansdowne and Exhibition Parks. The races will begin today at 2:30 p.m. as scheduled with the handicapper being called off and the substitute race going.

Minimum purses for the remaining 14 days will be $750. The tracks previously had refused to raise the $725 figure, but following the decision of the horsemen's association this morning to quit racing, the tracks upped their figure. The horsemen also get a bonus of four per cent on anything over $700,000 mutual handle for the week.

The horsemen previously had refused to send their thoroughbreds onto the track for anything less than an $850 minimum purse.

Canada Loses

Reduction By Frost
Over 70,300,000

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat moved higher on the Board of Trade here in response to news reports of a slashing drop in Canadian wheat prospects because of frost damage.

At the close wheat was up $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{1}{4}$ cents higher, with September at \$2.23 $\frac{1}{2}$.

Oats also went up $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{1}{4}$ cents.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture was given as the authority for the statement that 100,000,000 bushels were clipped from the Canadian wheat crop as a result of the August frost. In addition, it was said another 100,000,000 bushels were rendered unfit for human consumption.

The trade has heard reports of damage to Canadian wheat as a result of the August frost, but nothing to the extent estimated by the agriculture department. This would cut back Canadian production of milling wheat to under last year's short crop of 365,000,000 bushels.

Until now, the Canadian wheat crop has been estimated at a whopping 544,000,000 bushels.

70,300,000 DECREASE
WINNIPEG (CP)—Heavy frost damage to Canada's prairie wheat crop has been reflected in crop reports issued during the last week.

Reports by the pool elevators in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and by the Wheat Pool in Alberta, estimate the wheat yield for the three prairie provinces at 438,700,000 bushels.

This is a drop of 70,300,000 bushels from a pre-frost estimate of 509,000,000 bushels for the three provinces made Aug. 16 by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

At that time the bureau estimated the wheat yield for the whole of Canada at 544,000,000 bushels, allowing for an estimated 35,000,000 bushels grown outside the prairies. The next Dominion report is expected Thursday.

Saskatchewan, Canada's chief wheat-growing province, was hardest hit by the kernel-nipping cold.

In a preliminary estimate of the 1950 crop last Tuesday, Saskatchewan Pool Elevators estimated Saskatchewan will harvest 270,600,000 bushels of wheat.

55,000,000 DOWN
This compared with the Dominion Bureau of Statistics' pre-frost estimate of 326,000,000 bushels—or a slash of 55,000,000 bushels.

Manitoba expects to harvest a good crop despite the late season and frost damage. A report today from Manitoba Pool Elevators said the wheat crop may total 54,300,000 bushels. The pre-frost Dominion estimate for the province was 56,000,000 bushels.

Alberta, which was first to be hit by the unseasonable frosts, now expects a crop of 113,800,000 bushels, the Alberta Wheat Pool estimated this week. This compared with Aug. 16 estimate by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics of 127,000,000.

OTTAWA (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said today in the Commons that he is opposed to members receiving a full $4,000 indemnity for this emergency session of Parliament.

He rose on a question of privilege to complain about reports that C.C.F. members had initiated a fight to get the full session indemnity.

Mr. Coldwell said it was his feeling, and he had conveyed it to Prime Minister St. Laurent, that the members should receive a $25-a-day allowance for the session, which started Aug. 29.

Mr. Coldwell said it was true that Stanley Knowles (C.C.F.-Winnipeg North Centre) had urged that this session be adjourned rather than prorogued when the work is completed.

But Mr. Knowles had told Mr. St. Laurent that he did not feel anything should be paid the members during the recess.

Fight For Battle Mountain Soaring

TOKYO (AP)—Allied troops closed a dangerously big hole in the northeastern Korea warfront today. But they lost scarred Battle Mountain again in the southwest to superior North Korean forces.

The five-mile gap in the northeastern front was closed by South Korean troops, backed by U.S. planes. They linked forces in moves between Yongchon and Kyongju, road junction towns east of Taegu, central front city imperilled by 50,000 Communists from the north. The closing of the rupture in the line eased some of the pressure on Taegu.

The fighting was severe at Battle Mountain, two miles from burned-out Haman on the southwestern approach to Pusan port. North Korean losses in once again scaling the bald mountain were heavy. But their greatest losses of the day occurred in fighting swirling near Battle Mountain. The mountain has changed hands 12 times in 16 days.

The U.S. 25th Infantry Division killed 1,500 Communists there, boosting Communist losses on the southwestern front for the week to well above 15,000 men and raising official estimates of Red losses on all fronts to 27,000 troops in eight days—about 18 per cent of their 150,000 force.

Three thousand counter-attacking North Koreans recaptured the bald mountain which dominates approaches to Masan port on the extreme southern Korea coast.

DAWN ATTACK

The North Koreans took Battle Mountain in a dawn thrust, lost it later in the day, then came back with a successful punch despite an American artillery barrage of 7,000 rounds and strikes by U.S. planes.

'Rest OK'

NEW CUMMOCK, Scotland (AP)—Fifteen of 118 miners trapped 720 feet down in a Scotch coal pit since Thursday were brought safely to the surface today after being led precariously through a gas-clogged escape tunnel.

Another eight were reported waiting outside the tunnel to be brought to the surface. The first man rescued came to safety shortly after the noon hour. All were being brought through the escape tunnel with gas masks.

Rescue workers handed down breathing apparatus one-by-one to the other men, trapped by a cave-in 720 feet underground. Their return to daylight promised to be slow, since only one man at a time could get through the gas-filled escape tunnel punched through last night from an adjoining abandoned shaft.

CALL FOR MASKS

Housewives in this mining town of 6,000 were asked to bring war-souvenir respirators to the mine to speed up the rescue work. Ten of the men trapped in Thursday night's massive cave-in were feared lost. Eight escaped earlier.

The first man brought to the surface grimy with coal dust and suffering from exhaustion was identified as Gibb McCaughy, 22. He was carried out on a stretcher and taken to a hospital. He had been examined by doctors in the old mine shaft before being brought to the surface.

The rescue workers reached the trapped men Friday night, but a wall of odorless, colorless black damp gas blocked immediate escape through the tunnel that had been bored upward through 30 feet of solid coal from the old mine shaft. The men kept in touch with the surface by telephone.

NEW PLAN TRIED

At first, attempts were made to suck the deadly fumes out with big fans. But the process was too slow and the National Coal Board decided, despite the risk, to bring out the trapped men wearing breathing apparatus.

"This procedure will inevitably be prolonged over many hours and may involve some risk," a coal board statement said.

Earlier, the Coal Board had announced that since the use of the breathing apparatus required special training the risk was too great, but the fact that the process of sucking the gas out was too slow changed the plans.

Word reaching the pithead from the cave-in area was that the rest of the men would be brought up in groups of three after they scrape through the escape hole to the old shaft.

McCaughy later was in good enough shape, to talk briefly to reporters at the hospital.

"The rest of the men or O.K.," he said.

IN WEARY SLEEP

Earlier reports from below said the men were in good spirits, although some were sleeping—knocked out by weariness. Others sang Scottish folk songs, or ate sandwiches and drank beer passed to them by gas-masked rescue workers through the gas-clogged escape channel.

There was one known casualty, a rescue worker, Hugh Blackwood, 45, who died of a heart attack. Ten others who are missing are believed to have been caught in the avalanche of mud and peat precipitated by the collapse of the upper ground trapping the 118 whose rescue is now under way.

Search Clues Fail

WEST VANCOUVER (BUP)—Lower mainland police are still hunting for 69-year-old W. R. Stone of West Vancouver, who disappeared Aug. 28. Police said hundreds of clues have been followed, but none has produced any trace of Stone.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

CALENDAR REFORM

UNTIL A BOOKLET came into my hands the other day, bearing the imposing title of "Journal Of Calendar Reform," I hadn't given much thought to the calendar as being in need of reform—except, perhaps on those occasions when someone has directed my attention to some of the females depicted on free ones sent out by enterprising firms as being in need of a little more clothing and culture.

But when you look into this official organ of the World Calendar Association you quickly realize that our present calendar should not only be reformed, it should be thrown out, holus-bolus, for it is nothing else but a hindrance to world unity, according to their theory.

87 VARIETIES

AND BEFORE you get too snooty about their theory, let me enlighten you on the awful state of the world's time-reckoning systems, if you don't already know about it. While we in the Western world are in the year 1950, Israel is celebrating its New Year 5711. In Mecca, holy city of the Mohammedans, it is the year 1369; in Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, it is the year 1942.

Although in India and Pakistan, the Gregorian—which is the one we use—the Mohammedan and the Hebrew calendars are widely used, there are also fourteen other locally important calendars in use.

CONFUSION CONFOUNDED

JUST TO SHOW how confusing that can be, one Indian newspaper bears six different date-lines for the six calendars relied upon by the six racial groups that subscribe to it. It makes you wonder how those readers reconcile their ideas as to what is up-to-date in the way of news.

A propos of the Addis Ababa date discrepancy, I was greatly intrigued to read that Ethiopians throw in an annual thirteenth month of five or six days every year, for which no one gets paid and no one pays rent. That seems a bit hard on the workers, as well as on the landlords on the face of it. But I don't doubt that Ethiopian landlords are just as alive as landlords everywhere else when it comes to recouping any loss.

PATCHED UP, PROCESS

OUR CALENDAR, the Gregorian, is a patched-up hangover from ancient Egypt. When Julius Caesar conquered the Egyptians in 45 B.C., he took their calendar and reformed it to establish a year of 365 1/4 days, divided into twelve months, with a leap year to take care of the accumulated bits.

That lasted until 1582 when some astronomers got busy and told Pope Gregory that the sun-year was eleven minutes shorter than the Julian calendar year of 365 1/4 days. So, to correct it, he directed that October 4, 1582, be followed by October 15—and with that correction, the Gregorian calendar has remained in use until today.

LORD MAYOR ANNOYED

BUT IT WAS 170 years before England and the United States adopted it, by which time eleven days had gone into the discard. Correction was made in Britain by decreeing that September 2, 1752, be followed by September 14. That change had its humorous side. The Lord Mayor of London objected so strongly to losing eleven days of his year in office that, to placate his injured pride, the term was advanced from October 28 to November 2—and there it has remained to this day.

Now, if the World Calendar Association ever gets its way, each year will have 364 days, will begin on Sunday, January 1; each month will have 26 week-days plus Sundays, while dates would agree from year to year, with dates always falling on the same days of the week. Leap year day would fall on June 31 in leap year and be a world civic holiday.

WORLD HOLIDAY

THE ODD 365th day would also be a World civic holiday, falling on December 31 and thus eliminating New Year's Day holiday—a proposal which I know will be at once challenged by all those who have for so long consecrated this particular day to holiday hangovers and the shattering of New Year's Eve resolutions.

But, outside of that, the proposed reform promises to provide a heck of a mix-up for us Gregorians. And what about birthdays? It's all right to rob us oldsters of a few birthdays—there's nothing we would like better—but start doing that to the young fry and there would go up such a howl the world over as would drown out any jubilation over the standardization of year-and-era systems, no matter how lofty the motives of the reformers might be.

Sooke Residents Score Speeding In District

SOOKE—Automobile speeding through Sooke district was scored by members of Sooke Community Association at a meeting in Community Hall.

Improvements will be sought to the highway, including that portion between the corner of Grant Road and West Coast Road, through to Cooper's Cove at the north end of Sooke.

Members discussed changes in Sooke Community Hall to improve acoustics. Walter Conder, secretary, advised that the acoustics could be improved easily.

Mrs. Grant Soutar spoke on the subject of Sooke and North Sooke Women's Institute granting a scholarship to a graduate.

Coombs Fair Today

COOMBS—Annual fall fair sponsored by the Arrowsmith Agricultural Association was officially opened here at noon today by Dr. J. B. Munro, deputy minister of agriculture.

Entries were received in produce, horticulture, livestock and domestic science sections.

of Milne's Landing Junior-Senior High School. Support has been asked of other organizations in Sooke for the scholarship.

Mrs. Jean Cairns and John R. Myers of Sooke Community Association urged support of the fall fair to be staged by the Farmers' Institute in Sooke Hall Wednesday afternoon at 2.

400 Exhibits At Colwood Fair

COLWOOD—Four hundred exhibits from peaches and marrows to comic strip characters carved in wood, were shown at the fifth annual Colwood Fair, jointly sponsored by Colwood Women's Institute and Colwood Community Club, Friday.

Quilts and needlework of all kinds were displayed as well as a profusion of fall flowers. Articles were judged between 11 in the morning and 3 in the afternoon. Many were later donated for auction, with the proceeds for work of the Women's Institute and Community Club.

THIEF 'HOOKS' THREE PURSES

The fishing-rod thief was busy in the city again Friday night. He "hooked" $50 and personal valuables from three purses at the home of Mrs. Bernice Nicholls, 1186 View Street.

Police said the thief stood on a chair outside the bedroom window and used his "rod" to get the purses, owned by Mrs. Nicholls and her guests, Mrs. S. Cooper, 152 Wellington Street, and Mrs. H. A. Kepner, 2532 Belmont Avenue.

Proceeds From All-Sooke Day Total $2,930

SOOKE—Despite increased costs "in all directions" the net profit of All-Sooke Day held on Sooke River Flats, July 26, amounted to $2,930, slightly under the all-time 1949 record of $3,048.

Announcement was made by Walter Conder, secretary of Sooke Community Association, in a lengthy report at Sooke Community Hall Thursday night.

Members voiced approval of the outcome and H. H. Brown expressed gratitude to all who brought All-Sooke Day to a successful conclusion.

A breakdown in the profits revealed the salmon barbecue to be top money-maker bringing in $687, while the beef barbecue drew $565, the tombola $541, dance $411, midway games $352.

Members criticized the matter of motor vehicle parking at the event and ways and means to improve parking facilities by 1951 will be studied.

J. B. Munro To Open Sooke Fall Fair

SOOKE—Deputy Agricultural Minister J. B. Munro will officially open Sooke Fall Fair to be staged in the Community Hall Wednesday afternoon at 2 by the Farmers' Institute.

There are 96 classes for entries which include garden produce, kitchencraft, flowers, boys' and girls' exhibits and women's work.

E. W. White, supervising horticulturist, agriculture department, will judge the garden produce, and W. J. Pynn of Victoria, flowers. Mrs. Hilda Edgar will judge boys' and girls' work, and Mrs. Nova Graham, kitchen crafts.

$300,000 Hospital Wing Opened At St. Joseph's

Hundreds gathered in the bright sunshine before the Humboldt Street entrance to St. Joseph's Hospital Friday afternoon to watch "a simple but symbolic twin ceremony" as Bishop James M. Hill formally opened the new $300,000 Humboldt Ward Unit and rededicated the 1875 foundation stone.

Laborers still working at the back of the wing downed tools to stand on the fringe of the crowd and operating room nurses freed from duty watched from the hospital roof as speakers paid tribute to the work and service of the Sisters of St. Ann.

They bore testimony to the words of Hon. A. D. Turnbull, minister of health and welfare that "the building of a hospital today is a co-operative effort."

The new 128-bed unit is expected to help ease the present shortage of hospital beds in the city.

TRIPLE ANNIVERSARY

The occasion was one of triple importance to the Sisters of St. Ann as this year marks the centenary of the founding of the order, the 75th birthday of St. Joseph's Hospital and the golden jubilee of the hospital's School of Nursing.

"The rededication recalls a record of service that cannot be measured in a material way," His Excellency told the gathering before cutting the ribbon leading to the new wing.

The sisters, he said, were preparing to widen the scope and area of their work with the opening of the wing. He lauded the splendid co-operation and assistance rendered by federal, provincial and municipal governments.

"St. Joseph's Hospital enjoys a rank and standing with the best throughout the country."

Dr. Lloyd W. Bassett, president of the medical staff of the hospital, said that with the need for more accommodation the chief problem of all hospitals today, opening of the new unit had added significance.

NEED MORE NURSES

Looking further ahead, he said there was need too for "ever larger classes of graduating nurses."

Quoting from the original dedication of the hospital cornerstone "to the greater glory of God and for the care of the sick," he said the sisters "have achieved the purposes behind that dedication."

Mr. Turnbull brought the greetings of the province on behalf

RED CROSS ASKS FOR 500 DONORS

A two-day blood clinic is to be held at the Red Cross House, 1046 Fort Street, next Monday and Tuesday. Five-hundred donors are required. Clinics will be open from 1:30 to 4:30 in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 in the evening.

An effort is being made by the Red Cross to get regular donors to bring their friends when they attend.

the cost of medical care

THAT the cost of medical care has risen, no one can deny. But the rise has not been out of proportion to the general advance in the cost of living. At the same time the quality of medical service has been immeasurably improved.

Consider that today your physician has invested from eight to ten years and about ten thousand dollars in his education alone. He has no chance to earn until he is 26 or 27 years old. He must have an office in a good neighborhood; good equipment, a car, good clothes. Pharmacy, too, has stepped up its standards. Almost every state now requires four years of college and a year or two of practice before registration. All this adds up to better medical service for you.

Scottish Plan Biggest 'Action' Since Return From Battlefront

By ROY THORSEN

The First Battalion of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) is being geared for its biggest "action" since the "Fighting First" came back from the European battlefronts five years ago.

The Reserve Army Battalion is going to storm the beaches of one of the Gulf Islands, wipe out all enemy resistance and then make an evacuation by sea.

It is a two-day operation to be held Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.

Scheme may only be a mock version of warfare, but to the veterans it will bring back memories of those days when the Scottish hit the hellfire beaches of Normandy in '44.

Everything is being designed to look as much like the Real McCoy as possible — smoke screens, shellfire and other things to simulate an actual assault.

NAVY RESERVE IN

The scheme is a combined operations affair. The Royal Canadian Navy (Reserve) already has joined hands with the foot soldier unit for the show.

It is expected 150 Scottish troops will sail from Esquimalt on the afternoon of Sept. 30 in H.M.C.S. Sault Ste. Marie, training and headquarters ship of Victoria's naval reserve division, H.M.C.S. Malahat. The Algerine escort, manned by permanent and reserve force personnel, will take part in the beach assault and may be asked to aid in evacuation of the "wounded."

It is hoped that R.C.A.F. planes will play a role in the overall assault.

For lack of proper landing craft, naval longboats will be used for the beach assault.

Recruiting for the R.C.N. and

GOOD LUCK, FRED

Fred T. Allen of 323 Kinvor Street became a soldier again this week. He packed off to Vancouver Wednesday en route for the P.P.C.L.I. battalion of the Canadian Army special force for Korea or any other place the U.N. wants Canadian fighting men after a round of parties with a host of friends.

FRED T. ALLEN

Twenty-eight, and a veteran of the last war on the home front, Fred is a well-known sportsman. He was secretary of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association. No doubt he'll be telling new-found friends in khaki all about those "whoppers" he reeled in—and the ones that got away, mostly.

Another Victoria war veteran in uniform again is Andrew F. Jones, 3188 Shelbourne Street. He has enlisted for the special duty.

Saanich Council has authorized that re-enlisted special force veterans who took up offers of $1 lots can have them back on discharge.

Do you want to become a soldier—and get into it the painless, gradual way?

If you do, the two-war front-line Canadian Scottish wants you.

"We're teeing up a recruiting drive starting next week to get as many healthy young lads as possible in our first battalion (reserve force)," said Lt. Col. Walter Mosedale, battalion commander.

LOW IN MANPOWER

The Reserve Army battalion is away under strength. It's a two-night-a-week obligation. Training is on Monday nights and sports Thursday nights... but there's a bit of pocket money to go with it.

Scottish Regimental Association reunion banquet has been set for the night of Oct. 7 in the Club Sirocco at 6. Tickets will be available within a week from Jim Sutherland, secretary John Kelly and members of the executive.

Maj. Hector Alexander is recruiting Scottish veterans for another purpose. He wants them to do up articles for the latest edition of the Scottish wartime publication, The Brazier. He is the editor. It will be out before the end of the month.

Credit Curbs Cut Purchases In U.S.

Truman Has Power Under New Act To Set Limits For Installments

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman will broadcast to the country tonight a report on how he plans to use the broadest economic control powers ever held by a United States President.

The power grant became effective when the President signed into law Friday the control bill passed by Congress Sept. 1. It gives Mr. Truman somewhat greater authority than that held by President Roosevelt in the Second World War.

One use—to curb installment-plan buying—was invoked a few minutes after the President had signed the bill. This was a Federal Reserve Board order tightening, effective Sept. 18, credit terms that can be allowed buyers of automobiles and many other goods.

Mr. Truman himself has said he won't use his new wage-price-rationing control powers in the near future. So the credit-tightening action will reach more directly into the lives of millions of U.S. citizens than any other step now in the cards.

The credit curbs promise to clip the public's capacity to buy television sets, washing machines and other items.

Other orders to come are expected to curtail the availability of many consumer goods by directing essential materials required—such as steel and copper—to defense production.

The control program as a whole is intended to accomplish a mobilization speed-up and a check on inflation. Mr. Truman has warned that "we shall have to make many changes in our way of living and working here at home."

W. A. C. Bennett To Address P.C.'s In City Monday

W. A. C. Bennett, M.L.A. for South Okanagan, who is opposing Hon. Herbert Anscomb in a bitter battle developing within the provincial Progressive Conservative party over leadership, will speak here Monday.

He will address the Greater Victoria Progressive Conservative Association at Prince Robert House starting at 8.

The question of leadership of the party will be settled when a provincial convention is held in Vancouver next month.

Young Progressive Conservatives opposing Mr. Anscomb, who has been leader for several years, are backing Mr. Bennett for the position.

Still 'Only Fair'

"Condition still only fair," was the report of Jubilee Hospital officials today on Dennis Irvine, 15, Chemainus, gravely injured in last Saturday night's Island Highway Colwood tragic two-car crash.

All seven injured are still in the Jubilee. Others are Stuart Irvine and his children, David, Donna and Margaret Irvine, Roy Gallop and Gordon S. Field.

Donald James Gordon of Parksville and Mrs. Stuart Irvine were killed in the violent crash.

Meeting The New Challenge

THE GROWING IMPORTANCE OF the Pacific war theatre and the corresponding importance of Esquimalt as the Canadian naval establishment nearest to the scene of hostilities were emphasized in the program disclosed by Hon. Brooke Claxton this week. The Defence Minister made clear that the international situation demands an increase of strength on this coast—an increase which in part will consist of the addition of three active destroyers to the existing facilities. The dispatch of three ships to Korean waters had left British Columbia relatively unprotected. That situation will now be remedied, with all that that implies in the way of destroyers, personnel and accompanying services. The Esquimalt base will be placed virtually on a war footing.

To speak of the retail business that will result locally, of the money that will be spent on the Coast in the building and refitting of war vessels, is to dwell on secondary matters. The vital fact is that the Dominion has recognized the emergency nature of the present international situation and has acted. The recent announcement of stimulated recruiting for army, navy and air force has now been followed by further practical steps. These at the same time will bring home to local residents the import of Mr. Abbott's increased tax levies. The major ship-building program now to get under way will be no small item in the national budget, added, as it will be, to the $40,000,000 in projects already being shaped. Canadians will recognize, too, that as a member of the Atlantic Pact, as a partner of the United States in mutual defensive agreements, and as a member of the now-armed United Nations, this country cannot afford to lag in the provision of air, sea and land armament. Both for our own and our allies' safety, we cannot be a weak link in the democratic chain.

Profit From Punishment

OCCASIONALLY STORIES ARE TOLD of former students returning to their old schools to thank masters for the discipline they received in earlier years and to which they attribute correction of personality faults. The stories are not always convincing, but they serve a nice, didactic purpose.

A somewhat more authentic note was struck in the report yesterday of the woman who thanked the B.C. Hospital Insurance official for prosecuting her husband some time ago for non-payment of premiums. The husband is now in hospital receiving treatment for which he would have had to pay in full had he succeeded in evading the hospital insurance levy.

The account emphasizes one of the purposes of the scheme. It makes provision, while an individual possesses his health and is presumably able to earn money, for one of the big bills which mount up should he become a hospital case. The other main objective of the plan is to furnish the income required to keep the hospitals going.

The latter factor must be taken into consideration in what may appear to be some of the anomalies in the working of the hospital insurance scheme. We refer specifically to the benefits in-patients receive that are not enjoyed by out-patients. To receive certain treatments at no cost other than hospital insurance premiums, an individual must be an in-patient. On the surface, it might appear that hospitals would be ahead of the game if they gave specific treatment for out-patients and relieved themselves of the necessity of providing bed care, feeding and other services. That would be an automatic factor in a health insurance scheme. The plan now in operation, however, is restricted to hospital insurance. It must be limited to the particular aim of extending hospital service to individuals throughout the province who are acutely in need of treatment.

A Significant Milestone

THERE WILL BE WIDESPREAD SATISFACTION in the news from West Point Grey yesterday that a medical faculty has been established at the University of B.C.

For half a century outstanding young British Columbians have had to look east for a medical education. Hundreds of them have gone on to Toronto and McGill where they have received excellent training and later returned to serve with distinction in their native province. But this has been a costly business. The need for a medical faculty has been evident since the days of the "Fairview shacks," when U.B.C. was a remote wing of Old McGill. The demand for such training is apparent in the registration figures for the inaugural class; of the 350 applicants, only 60 could be taken.

Establishment of the new medical faculty—the first to be created in North America for 30 years—rounds out the U.B.C. curriculum and provides a significant milestone in the development of this progressive institution. It is safe to predict that the medical faculty will in due course attain the same high levels of scholarship as obtain in other departments on the Point Grey campus. To President Norman MacKenzie and his associates on this felicitous occasion, our congratulations; to the new students, our very best wishes.

Eloquence And Somnolence

THE LONDON NEWS ITEM TELLING of the test made on air conditioning in the new House of Commons chamber by subjecting 400 Guardsmen to a boring speech while the controls were set at various degrees of fresh air is one that should delight pragmatists the world over. The report of the experiment told how here and there among Government and Opposition benches privates succumbed one by one to the monotonous oratory, despite the best efforts of engineers to increase the supply of cool oxygen. The trial, unfortunately, was deemed inconclusive, and must be repeated. Whatever it may have shown regarding ventilation, respiration and attendant phenomena, however, it would certainly seem to have proved that members of the House of Commons and members of the Household Cavalry have much in common. There is no dependable air defence when Morpheus takes the floor.

U.K. Writer Sees New Threat In Black List Of Radio Stars

By NORA BELOFF, from New York

ONE hundred and fifty people, many of them international celebrities, are blacklisted in a new, privately-sponsored publication which American advertisers are now using to decide whom to employ and whom to exclude from radio and television.

Under the American system all time on the air is leased to private companies for publicity, and they employ advertisers to decide who shall write, speak or act on their own programs. The new 215-page booklet, called "Red Channels," is edited by former F.B.I. investigator, Kirkpatrick and has a cover picture of a crimson hand descending on a black microphone.

FAMOUS NAMES

Famous names include film stars Orson Welles and Judy Holliday, Arthur Miller of "Death of a Salesman," journalists Bill Shirer and Howard K. Smith and film director Burgess Meredith. To each name is appended organizations to which he belonged or what he said or others said about him justifying his inclusion on the list. The index of names is preceded by the explanation that it has three purposes; firstly, to expose how Communists have "carried out their plan of infiltration," secondly, to show which artists and actors have been inveigled into lending their names to Communist causes, and lastly, to prevent others from doing so.

Its publication brings into sharp relief the current American confusion between Communism and Liberalism—a confusion inconceivable in Europe. The case against Burgess Meredith, for example, starts with the fact that he signed a letter favoring winter clothing relief to Yugoslavia in 1945. He is also named for membership of a committee which favored lifting the embargo on Spanish Loyalists during the "non-interventionist" thirties and for a subscription toward a medical bureau to aid Spanish democracy. The final charge is that he participated two years ago in a "Stop Censorship" committee.

The last-minute cancellation last week of the appearance of television star Jean Muir, whose name is on the black-list, was the first public indication of the influence of the new booklet, although it is understood to be "gospel" for advertising firms in making new decisions on employment policies.

'VIRTUAL PURGE'

This week the "New York Times" referred to the publication as marking the start of a "virtual purge" in American radio and television. Two features distinguish it sharply from "purges" behind the Iron Curtain. Firstly, punishment is unemployment and social boycott, not physical cruelty. Secondly, whereas victims in the totalitarian system are subject to mock trials, in this case there is no trial and no appeal.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

ON OPENING the society pages of a B.C. newspaper the other night, I found weddings referred to as RITES in ten different headlines. If there was enough space, they were called NUPTIAL RITES (which uses five more spaces than WEDDINGS), so it isn't just space-saving thrift that is giving the word such a run. Logically, of course, a wedding ceremony is a rite all right; we can't quibble about that. But there is more to English prose style than mere logic. After too many repetitions, you cannot escape the feeling that the unmarried girls who write these headlines are getting some sort of kick out of hypnotising themselves with the thought of rites. Shakespeare said something about "Time goes on crutches, till Loue haue all his rites." Well, time certainly goes on crutches for me, till society-page writers haue all their rites.

WHILE quibbling here, we might turn our attention to a dispatch from Montreal of some few days ago, via C.P., which informed a sadder and wiser world that "Jean Labelle was ordered to pay $611 damages after his former fiancée, Maria Dilio, testified she was left at the altar despite a successful rehearsal of their projected marriage." Strictly speaking, and in the old-fashioned sense of the word "marriage," a wedding and a marriage are the same thing. But by modern usage, a wedding is the formal ceremony and a marriage is the theoretically lifelong relationship between the couple who got hitched at the wedding. What Mr. Labelle and Miss Dilio rehearsed so successfully (strange adverb) was presumably a wedding, not a marriage. It is a pity more marriages are not better rehearsed. The actors are anything but line-perfect.

ONE of the latest rites headlines to meet my gaze was this: MR. X. Y. CLAIMS BRIDE AT LOVELY RITES READ IN CAPITAL. It seems to me there are several things wrong here. Would it not have been politer to say MISS A. B. CLAIMS GROOM? Provided, that is, there was any claiming done at all; it sounds like claiming Left Luggage in a checkroom. And how much better it would look with one extra little S there: MR. X. Y. CLAIMS BRIDE AT LOVELY RITES READ IN CAPITALS. Or printed in capitals, anyhow.

SPINACH

I WAS asked the other day, as an ex-soubard, if anyone still sings that song about trees having nests of robins in their hair, poor things. Since I have dedicated my declining years to avoiding that sort of concert, I wouldn't know. But I know that a few people still sing an amazingly similar song, and because it has never been printed before, I think the time is more than ripe for printing it here:

I've never seen from here to Greenwich A poem like a bowl of spinach. What seaweed ever was so rare,

A nest of earwigs in its hair? Whether plucked fresh or out of tins, It bristles with its vitamins.

The load of iron that it holds Is similar to nuts and bolts. It makes our manly blood run red, Puts tough ideas in our head. Poems can't make our griefs diminish, But who can say the same of spinach?

FRACAS

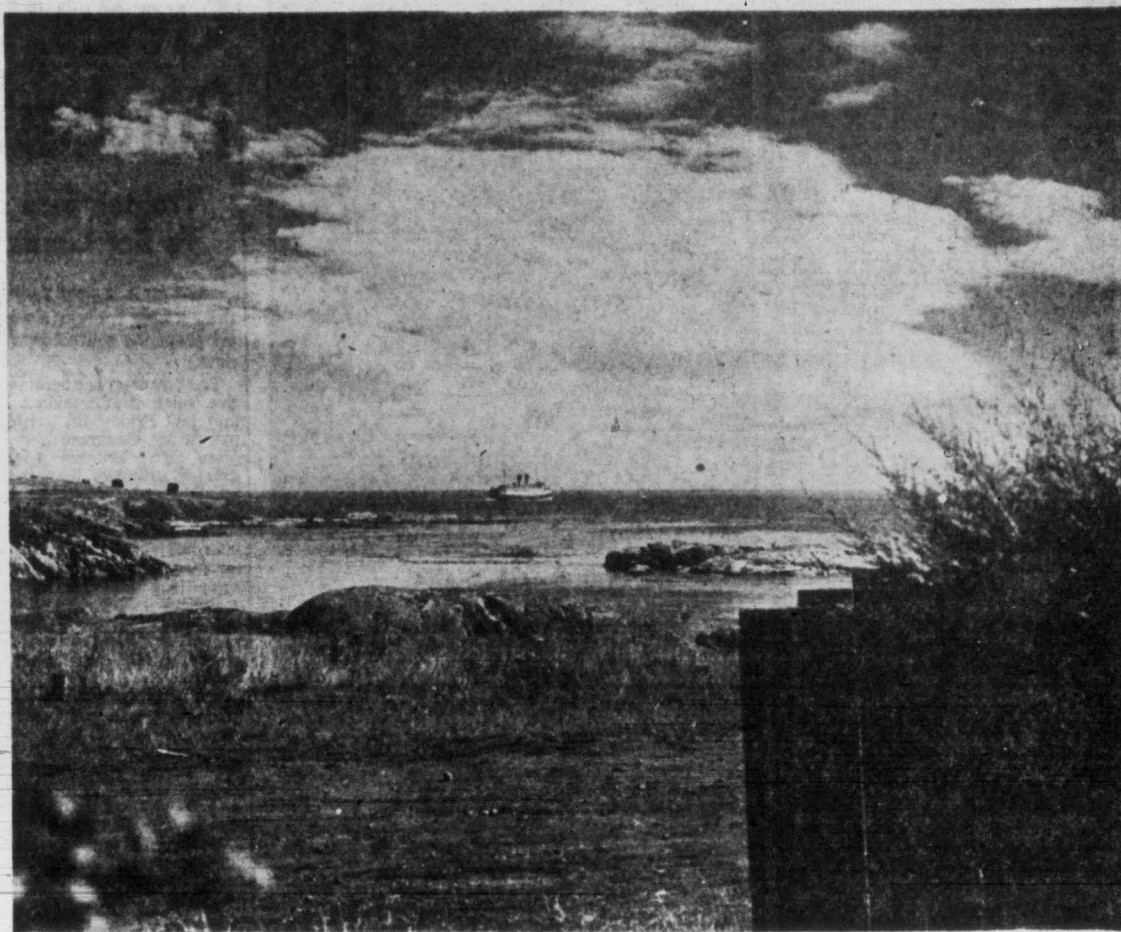

THE OTHER DAY I told my elder son (aged eight) that he mustn't get upset if grown-ups quarrel. He said he never did; he rather enjoyed it. I said "Here, kid, you're supposed to have it make you feel insecure. It just so happens that I've been reading a lot about this, and you haven't. Why, man, a kid feels so punk when his parents throw things around their lawful domicile, it goes to his head and he has to be locked up." Whereupon my first-born said "If a kid doesn't know grown-ups fight . . . if he hasn't even got enough sense for that . . . well, he should be locked up." Which, of course, is very defeatist indeed.

GIFT NITE OFFERS RITE

AS ONE of the prizes at a gala baseball game in Laredo, Texas, on Labor Day, a lucky member of the audience was given a free divorce. Some public-spirited lawyer threw this gift into the hat, to support the game between the local Optimist Club and the local Junior Chamber of Commerce. Laredo has been famous for divorces ever since Alfred Henry Lewis wrote his Wolfville yarns 50 years ago, but this seems an innovation. What if the winner doesn't require a divorce, or has one already? Could he trade it for a funeral or a wedding or a couple of christenings or an appendectomy? Is he allowed to sell it for cash to the man next door, over or under the counter? "Pst, Mac, you wanna buy a good divorce, never been used?"

FIFTY or 60 years ago, in a nameless part of the mining frontier, a husband won a much finer prize than a divorce. He came up before a certain famous judge who was better known for his common sense than his grasp of legal quibbles, and asked the judge for a divorce. The judge said, "Isn't your wife that lovely Mabel Skitch, used to be Mabel Jones? Why, goodness, Mr. Skitch, you don't want to get rid of a fine girl like that." "Maybe not," said Mr. Skitch, "but she's running round with everybody in town except me." "Well, listen," said the judge, "I won't ever agree to separate you legally from a prize like that. No, sir. What I'll do is give you an injunction. Maybe they need a few injunctions given away free in Laredo too.

As Our Readers See It

WHO MAKES THE RULES?

I enclose herewith a letter which I received recently. It seems to me that centralization of authority, even in Ottawa, is a highly debatable question. Centralization of authority in another country—with all due respect to that country, which is a very good neighbor of ours—is not a very desirable thing. Why anyone in Victoria, B.C., must abide by a decision arrived at other than by a vote of the local labor body, is beyond me.

The letter clearly indicates that local autonomy for our labor unions seems to be vanishing very rapidly. While organization of this sort may be very helpful to the labor oligarchy in the U.S. from a point of view of simplifying their task, it seems a very poor deal for a local union which must conduct itself according to local conditions and may suffer serious damage if it is not allowed to do so.

I would appreciate your printing the attached letter verbatim, so that the people of this community may judge for themselves.

M. P. PAINE.

715 View Street.

(The letter, addressed to the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, at Indianapolis, Ind., and to the International Ass'n of Heat and Frost Insulators, at Washington, follows:)

This letter will reply to your joint letter of July 10, 1950, in which you agreed to present to me for a decision, national in scope, the issue of the trade to have jurisdiction over the "installation of insulation material of all types, whether blown, nailed, or attached in other ways, to walls, ceilings and floors of new or existing buildings."

Your statements of position dated July 13, 1950, and July 17, 1950, with attached exhibits, as well as your oral presentations to me, have been carefully considered. On the basis of this evidence and argument the following is my decision on home insulation, as per your agreement, to be national in scope: "The installation of insulation material of all types, whether blown, nailed, or attached in other ways to walls, ceilings and floors of new or existing buildings, shall be the work of the carpenters."

(Signed) JOHN T. DUNLOP, Chairman, National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes in Building and Construction Industry, Washington, D.C.

PARKING ZONES

I am very pleased to read in your paper that we have someone thinking the same as us car owners about the parking zones in our city, but who can you blame for this sad affair but our one-man council who's name we hear so much about in your paper these days.

I was wondering if there is anyone on our city council who can argue against Mr. Diggon on this parking affair. There may be hope for us yet.

HOW ABOUT 'VICIOUS CIRCLE'?

Thousands of visitors from all parts of the world will see and pass each other in our "roundabout."

This circle will make an impression on them, especially if it has an appropriate name and anything that impresses the tourist will mean money in our pockets.

As most of our tourists are fun-loving Americans, it is my suggestion that we call the roundabout "The Crossroads of the Whorl."

I believe this name to be appropriate with just a touch of dry humor and it most certainly will be inexpensive publicity.

TEA-TOTALLER

I am amazed that you should think it amusing to print a calumny on the ladies of Victoria in the shape of a letter from one Mr. Clugston who thinks we drink too much tea and thus make ourselves less charming. I'd like to see that Mr. Clugston. I bet he doesn't look any too wonderful himself. Probably the reason he is so repulsive he never runs across anyone willing to tempt him. As for drinking tea, it is well known that warm water is extremely beneficial to the kidneys. Also, tannic acid and nicotine counteract each other, so that anyone who smokes is crazy not to drink tea. And most of us do smoke these days, with or without Mr. Clugston's kind permission.

APART FROM POLITICS

Can any Progressive Conservative point out one real fault Mr. Anscomb has made during his term of office either as mayor of Victoria or as a representative of Oak Bay? He has given the best years of his life to public service for our good. Show me any man in the House over the way that has done any better. It seems to me there is too much politics in this case like many in the past. Remember my words: The man that hath no enemies is either a fool or a hypocrite.

Many a mountain but of a mole hill has been raised against good men through jealousy. You never hear anything about the also rans, of course, they fill up the race.

The Coalition Government is the best government we have had in my time, which is only 43 years.

Coalition Government is as near to a business government you can get and that is what we want and what we need.

MINGLING THE HARMONIC

The inference I draw from the evidence is that atheists and agnostics (essentially the same, one denying, the other not acknowledging, the Lord) are made use of in the Lord's Kingdom in spite of themselves. For, as "Rational Psychology" teaches, "the knowledge of order and truth is connate with us and is rarely learned. Otherwise there would be no sensation. For the existence of sensation demands that the harmonic shall be mingled with things disharmonic, sensation arising from their difference in connection and situation. Thus, from the mingling of truths, fallacies and falsities comes reasoning, thought, discussion and opinions, without which there would be little conversation, no schools of thought, nor any sciences, and the shelves of our libraries would be empty."

PAPAL DICTUM

What I would like to know from the editors of the Times is just what is meant by the Papal dictum that the Virgin Mary went up to Heaven in body as well as spirit. Any decent newspaper would try to explain this. The Times has not done it. If not, in the vernacular, why not?

MORE THAN FUN

Toronto Star
More than 300,000 persons in Canada are "hobbyists"—people who engage in all sorts of skilled crafts for the fun of doing such work and not for a living or duty. The number of persons who have developed hobbies has increased doubtless through the influence of recreation and community centres. Psychologists and probably also medical advisers have had a share in this movement, for the word has gone around that the pursuit of a hobby is important to a person's health.

SPOILS HIS CASE

Calgary Albertan
Mr. E. D. Fulton, young British Columbia M.P., has achieved national prominence by advocating all-out military conscription, one of the first public figures to do so.

Mr. Fulton could make out a fairly good case for his suggestion, but he spoiled it by urging in the same breath that Canada's war veterans refuse to enlist in the 5,000-man special force being recruited voluntarily for service in Korea and elsewhere.

Another member of Parliament, Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal, spent several years in an internment camp in the last war because he advocated a boycott of the nation's war effort. The difference between his statement then and that of Mr. Fulton now is not too great.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"EVERYBODY," said the Elevator Man, "has a hankering to know what's going to happen. I think from the dawn of time people have been spending their present in using their past to try and guess their future. Some times it seems to work, but most people will finally admit that a successful prediction is more good luck than ability. People who want to believe in fortune telling have no trouble doing it. They just ignore the times the sooth-sayer is wrong and concentrate on the times he turns out right. On an average that ought to be 50 per cent, and that way you can build up a nice little total of successful forecasts. Once you've got the reputation you can also build up a nice little income. Mezzanine!"

"That was the case," said the Elevator Man, "with that woman in court in Detroit the other day. She used to predict a pretty dull outlook for you for five dollars. But for another five she'd make your future sound more cheerful. The judge had her crystal ball on his desk. He handed it down to her and asked her to take another look at it. 'Why, it says $90 or 100 days,' she gasped. 'So be it,' said the judge. He had written the sentence on a piece of paper and stuck it behind the globe. A person's past often catches up with him, but it doesn't usually get way ahead like that. Lower main!"

"In the old days," said the Elevator Man, "a fella whose curiosity couldn't be restrained went and asked an oracle what was in store for him. Sometimes the oracle was just a hole in the ground, with a hollow voice coming out of it. Whether some old boy was in back with a megaphone is a matter of opinion. The Romans used to tear a chicken apart to see what was ahead of them, like a fella nowadays will look in a pot to see what's for supper. Tea leaves, sand tables, playing cards and other aids are more modern—and probably just as efficient. I'd prefer the chicken myself. At least it would leave you knowing what tomorrow's lurch was going to be."

THE HOME GARDEN

Care In Handling Crops Lengthens Storage Life

By JACK G. BEASTALL

Home gardeners will harvest a large quantity of fruit during September, and the length of time it may be kept in storage will depend on how it is handled.

The greatest of care should be exercised to prevent bruising, especially in the case of the tender-skinned early varieties of apples which soon show the effects of rough treatment.

Black currant bushes are pruned this month, removing the old growths to make room for new shoots.

Newly planted strawberries need special attention. Runners must be removed as soon as they appear, a steady supply of moisture maintained, and all weeds removed from the beds. The object is to assist the plants to make as much growth as possible while the weather is good.

The fall pruning of cherry trees is said to lessen the condition known as gumming. The sour, or pie cherries, receive much the same treatment as the peach and nectarine. After harvesting, all wood which has borne fruit can be removed providing there are young shoots for replacement.

SHORTEN BRANCHES

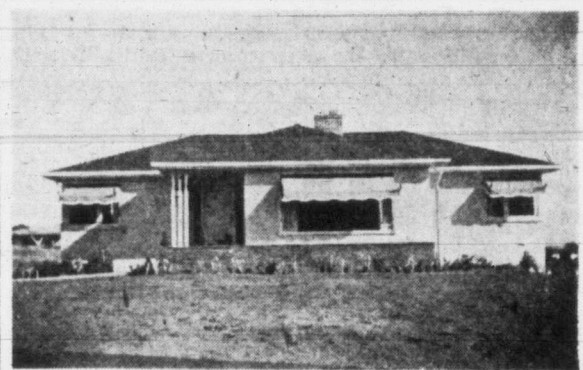

It is impossible to remove entire branches which have fruited, so these are shortened to a point where young growths start.

The sweet cherries are handled in a different manner. On these, the side shoots, which were shortened during the summer, are now cut back to within two buds of the base to induce the formation of fruit spurs.

Leading shoots, those which grow from the end of the branches, are shortened by about one-third of their length in the case of standard trees. When grown on a wall, the leading shoots are treated the same as side shoots if the branches have filled their allotted space.

Merchant Men May Be Given Navy War Benefits

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton told the Commons Friday night the Maritime Commission and the Department of Transport have under consideration the possibility of making the merchant service an auxiliary of the navy.

The minister made the statement in reply to appeals from opposition members for extension of veterans' benefits to merchant seamen who might serve in Korean waters. The minister said that matter could not be considered under the legislation dealing with the special Korean Brigade.

The House sat 15 minutes beyond its usual 11 o'clock rising hour discussing the case of the seamen and finally gave third and final reading to the bill.

The question of the merchant seamen was raised by A. J. Brooks (P.C.-Royal, N.B.); Clarie Gillis (C.C.F.-Cape Breton South); Howard Green (P.C.-Vancouver-Quadra) and Douglas Harkness (P.C.-Calgary East).

Mr. Green said civil employment benefits were the very least that should be given to seamen serving in Korean waters and they could be extended during the bill before the House.

Fund $582,646,972

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment insurance fund totaled $582,646,972 at March 31 last, it was disclosed Friday in the annual report of the unemployment insurance advisory committee. The report, tabled in the Commons, said the fund was more than $53,000,000 higher than at March 31, 1949.

Man Plans To Sue Constable

VANCOUVER (CP) — Unstated damages will be sought from a Vancouver police constable following the June shooting of a juvenile, it was learned Friday.

Counsel for the juvenile's father said Constable Albert Whyte, who admitted in court his pistol had discharged and wounded the lad, will be sued. The juvenile was being questioned in connection with thefts from automobiles.

He subsequently was convicted and put on three-months' probation, but the B.C. Court of Appeal quashed the order.

Constable Whyte said his pistol discharged suddenly when the boy stepped back after being challenged. He was struck in the left of his abdomen.

BEHIND the MIKE

By F.E.B.

September 9, 1950 (3)—Although we have only two issues under our belt, BTM has already established traditions. One is to publish a chuckle each week. A sort of behind-the-scenes incident which we feel might be interesting and (we hope) amusing to you. We seem to be deluged with such happenings this week, but will recite only a few of them. On the serious side of the ledger, we have some coming features and a few interesting sidelights about the men who keep "Capital Entertainment" pouring from your loudspeakers.

Receptionist Lillian Armstrong reports that many questions are asked by listeners who phone in, but the call received this past Monday tops them all. The query was: "Could you tell us what the temperature was last Christmas Eve in Victoria?"

Over 1,000 book covers were given away on the first day of their release to school children calling at the CKDA STUDIOS. The book covers feature pictures of all CKDA's radio personalities. There are still some left, so all boys and girls are welcome to come and get their THREE FREE book covers.

The newest voice to be heard on 1340, belongs to Hal Yerxa, who hails from the mainland where he broadcast his own early-morning show. Hal has many years of experience in the entertainment business, having traveled with Woodhouse and Hawkins to Army Camps during the war, announcing and interviewing on many top stations from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Hal will be on the air with an astounding new show in the very near future, and your columnist will be the first to tell you all about it. Welcome, Hal!

One of the most intriguing dramas ever to be presented on Ronald Coleman's FAVORITE STORY series, is scheduled for Monday at 8.30. The title INSIDE A KID'S HEAD, leaves much room for imagination. And that is precisely what the story is about... IMAGINATION! What a 10-year-old boy thinks and imagines is dramatized in a half-hour of entertainment for the whole family. Imagination turns back the history pages. We recommend it heartily as a most amusing and entertaining show. Mark it on your calendar of coming events!

GLORIA SWANSON is the glamorous star to appear on Thursday's MUSIC FROM THE MOVIES, 7.30... presented by the Capital Theatre. Listen then for an interesting interview, direct from Hollywood, with the star of SUNSET BOULEVARD.

CKDA's nightly summer feature, WELCOME VISITOR has packed its bags for this season, and a brand new feature is planned to take its place in the near future. The number of passengers debarking from the PRINCESS PATRICIA and PRINCESS MARGUERITE has dropped from an average 800 to about 350. In the past, it was possible to complete 15 minutes of interviews while people were still pouring from the ships... now the passengers are off in a matter of eight minutes, making interviews of any length impossible.

"Hardack," said Dave Hill, as he handed me a letter addressed to the DELTA RICE "WHAT IS IT?" contest ($8.40 a.m.), which featured the sound effect of a saw cutting through wood during the past week. The listener had written, "a knife slicing bread!"

Now, as Tippi says when he closes the pages of his Scrapbook (6.15 nightly)... May you live as long as you want... and never want as long as you live!

Apartment Retains Old World Atmosphere

Losing none of its old world atmosphere through conversion, the stately home located at 1337 Rockland Avenue now takes its place among the leading apartments in Victoria.

Occupying the original site of "Robleda," the mansion of the Hall family before the turn of the last century, and later by Mr. John Arbuthnot, a former mayor of Winnipeg, the present building erected in 1930 lies amid an old world garden with a commanding view of straits and mountains. The terraced gardens contain some of the finest oak trees in Victoria as well as some magnificent specimens of redwood trees.

The 10 self-contained suites offer a wide variety in size and arrangement. Suites are finished in delightful pastel shades. The large leaded windows, with their delightful outlook provide an unusual feature not usually offered the apartment dweller.

The flower exhibition with its multi-colored blooms of all kinds drew the praise of Alderman Duncan McTavish of Victoria. "The flower exhibits are excellent," he said. "I was surprised to see such a fine showing."

The alderman mentioned the wonderful collection of roses, sweet peas, gladiolas, zinnias and potted plants which took up

Steady growth of agriculture in the Cowichan district is reflected in the annual Cowichan Agricultural and Industrial Exhibition at Duncan which is featuring this week a record number of farm exhibits.

Entries include a wide range of livestock, vegetables, fruits, flowers, home cooking, Indian handicrafts and paintings from residents of the district.

The exhibition is the "show window" of Cowichan district, as A. H. Heaslip, president, aptly puts it. "We are striving to make it the major annual event of its kind on Vancouver Island."

Judges of livestock and farm produce were all of the opinion that if Cowichan residents continued to support their fair as they have done this year it would soon become the major event on the island.

All kinds of garden vegetables grown on Vancouver Island were entered as exhibits. They did not look as if they had suffered any ill effects from the lack of rain this summer.

A first prize winner in the vegetable collection class was Edith Schooling.

a large section of the exhibition hall.

In the rose bowl section, competition was very keen and was won by Mrs. E. C. Trench. A first prize was also awarded to Mrs. Amy M. Clark in the potted plant class. Mrs. E. L. Price also took a first with her zinnias.

FINE FRUIT

If the fruit entries are samples of what can be grown in Cowichan district then the area ranks tops as a fruit growing area in the province. Plums, peaches, pears and apples were all large and well-developed.

The well-developed pears of Mrs. W. J. Jennings took first prize, while Irma Burrows scored a first with her juicy peaches.

Church Asked To Declare Tax Evasion Immoral Act

Resolution To Be Submitted Next Week At United General Council Session

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church of Canada may ask its ministers to tell their congregations that tax evasion is immoral—as well as illegal.

A resolution to be presented at the 14th meeting of the church's general council next week will express concern with such examples of "social dishonesty" as income tax evasion by individuals and companies; violation of foreign exchange regulations and reported expenditures of unnecessary large amounts of money during election campaigns.

The resolution was drafted by the church's Board of Evangelism and Social Service. It will be considered when the meeting opens Tuesday.

It calls for a greater willingness by individuals and corporations to pay taxes, a more thorough supervision of unemployment insurance payments and a declaration by all political party leaders that their organizations have been told not to accept campaign funds from liquor companies and gambling syndicates.

Other resolutions to be considered are: a suggestion that all Canadian receive a pension of $40 a month without means test after 70; endorsement of a resolution passed by the World Council of Churches that the use of the hydrogen bomb would be a sin against God; and that members of the church should be asked to take oaths to refrain from the use of alcohol.

The seaport town of St. Pierre on the island of Martinique was completely destroyed with its 26,000 inhabitants by the eruption in 1902 of Mont Pelee.

WEEKLY SERMON

Mark's Gospel Most Invaluable Of Four

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
OF the four Gospels in the New Testament, the Gospel by Mark is, perhaps the most invaluable.

Matthew presents us with the genealogy and story of Bethlehem. To Luke we owe a dazzling portrait of Mary and a precious account of the birth of Jesus. John contributed many facts overlooked by the other Gospel writers and gave us a profound interpretation of the things he knew.

But the Gospel of Mark stands out as a direct and simple account of the life, death, ministry and resurrection of Jesus. The earliest written of the Gospels, Mark's work can be criticized for its incompleteness. In fact, his omission of many vital details prompted Luke to write the full story as one who knew all from the very beginning.

Mark's knowledge was mostly second-hand for he was not one of the Twelve. It was known that he was an interpreter of Peter, setting down what was adapted to the needs of his hearers. Having had no day-to-day acquaintance with Jesus, he did not feel qualified to author a comprehensive account and that is why we must turn to Matthew if we wish to read the Sermon on the Mount.

Yet with all of the inadequacy of his story, Mark wrote the Gospel with a vividness and directness that has never been rivaled.

Again and again he employs the word "straightaway." His strong faith is always apparent in his convincing narration.

Referred to in Acts 12:12, John Mark was related to Barnabas, Accompanying Barnabas on Paul's first missionary journey. John Mark became the subject of dissent between Paul and Barnabas. When Paul was about to set out on his second missionary journey, he refused to take John Mark with him charging that Mark had deserted them on the first trip for no good reason.

CHOSE SILAS In the argument that followed, Paul turned his back on Barnabas and chose Silas as his companion. Ever since, generations have wondered whether John Mark was really a quitter as charged by Paul.

Concerning that question mark in the life of Mark, I believe that he may have had a good reason for returning to Jerusalem. And again, Paul's rigid self-discipline may have been too exacting for Mark. Even great Christians do not always see eye-to-eye.

In any case it is good to know that John Mark stands vindicated by his full life and work, even if, as is by no means clear, he may have failed at one point.

Once the "ugly duckling" course of the city where novices in this business of pellet-pummeling went to avoid detection, Gorge Vale is now a respected member of the golfing community.

Respected not only for its fine bevy of golfers—there's 19 with better than a 10 handicap amongst the 415 membership—but for the personal pride taken by these same members now that the club is all theirs.

It isn't so long ago that Gorge Vale clubbers were lightly regarded as to prowess on the links but not so now. This club, little in stature as compared to Victoria, Colwood and Up-lands, and with its small frame clubhouse and dirt parking lot has in its midst many future comers. You can take the word of professional Joe Pryke for this. Joe is well liked at the Gorge. Nothing is too much trouble for him. He'll go out of his way to help someone iron out a few kinks in their game. It's symbolic of the club spirit.

Joe will work with other city pros on the annual school board clinic this year. Saturday mornings this fall he'll have his usual free session with the kids and besides he'll conduct classes for slicing sailors of the R.C.N.

You don't have to delve too deeply into the files to see just what Joe's junior program has produced. First, naturally, there's Bob Fleming, finalist in the recent B.C. Amateur. "Bob's a good golfer," says Joe, "and I think he's got the competitive urge to go a long way."

Then there's Bob's button partner, Johnny Merriman. Joe figures Merriman is still a couple of years away but holds great promise for the slim youngster.

A few others to watch: Pudge Panthorpe, Vic Lowe, who won the first flight in the amateur; Bob Herberston, Laurie Carroll and Keith Lawrence. Below the teens remember the name of Bill Holland. He's only 11 years old. Women's club champion is Shirley Fry. Just another junior.

Mrs. Evelyn Jackson, 1949 Nanaimo women's champion and runner-up this year, makes the long trek down the island to get tutelage from Pryke. An out-of-town member at Colwood, Mrs. Jackson has high praise for Mrs. Elizabeth Matson and Elizabeth Paynter.

From the record book: The last time there was an all-Victoria final in the B.C. Amateur was in 1931 when Harold Brynjolfsson defeated Bob Morrison at the 36th hole. . . . The Hamber team trophy last came to the city in 1939, Morrison, Walter Newcombe, Gordon Verley and Alan Taylor, the Victoria foursome. Raw-boned Bob was on the Up-lands trophy-winning team this year.

Crack of the week: Jim Squire, after winning the B.C. title. "I feel like becoming elated." It's probably been forgotten but Squire won the city junior championship three times and the city title once. That should answer the question: "Who is Squire?" And he had to be practically ordered to play by his boss, ex-Premier John Hart.

A couple of ex-Victoria caddies, Pat Fletcher and Charles Carnegie have recently been in the news. . . . Charlie's in business in Edmonton while Fletcher was runner-up to Stan Leonard in the Saskatchewan Open. . . . Fred Clark holds the course record at the Gorge with a 64. . . . Bob Fleming among others from these parts will likely enter the B.C. Open next week. . . . Joe Pryke may also go.

The match of the week: Fleming and Merriman against Bill McColl and Vic Painter at Colwood Sunday. At stake: the buttons.

Women Seek Title

Women's B championship opens Monday at the Up-lands Golf Club with the qualifying round. Draw and starting times follow:

12:30—Mrs. J. P. Dawson and Mrs. C. Rumber.
12:35—Mrs. W. Hunt and Mrs. J. R. Roberston.
12:40—Mrs. W. G. Moore and Mrs. F. B. Rober.
12:45—Mrs. H. L. Woolson and Mrs. H. F. Webb.
12:50—Mrs. J. M. Boyd and Miss M. H. H. H.
12:55—Mrs. R. C. Elliott, Miss C. Quinn, and Mrs. C. Richards.

FRENCH-OWNED SCRATCH WINS ST. LEGAR STAKES

DONCASTER, Eng. (Reuter)—Scratch II won the 174th running of the St. Legar Stakes here today. Vieux Manoir, the favorite, was second and San Linea third. Fifteen-horses ran.

First two horses to the post were French-owned. The victory gave France four of the English classic racing season's five major prizes.

Scratch came up in the final 200 yards to defeat the favorite by a length. San Linea was five lengths in back of Vieux Manoir.

The winner, who brings his owner, French cotton magnate Marcel Boussac, a £13,959 ($43,273) purse, paid off 9 to 2. The favorite ran at 7 to 4 and San Linea was a 33 to 1 bet.

Cougars Buy Duffy In Opening Deal

First deal towards the building of the 1950-51 edition of the Victoria Cougars Pacific Coast Hockey League club was the announcement today by general manager Fred Hutchinson of the purchase of Maurice Duffy from the New Westminster Royals.

Capable of playing either on defence or in one of the wing positions, Duffy scored 20 goals and assisted on 25 others for the league champions last season. During the 1948 campaign as a member of both the Seattle and New Westminster squads Duffy has a scoring record of 13 goals and 18 assists.

With the player limit changed for the coming season whereby the Coast League clubs can carry 16 players along with a spare goalie and can dress 14 men, inclusive of goalies, it is possible Duffy may work in as a good utility man. It is likely that all clubs will pack a couple of utility players this year. Up until Nov. 6 each team can carry as many players as it wishes.

"Purchase of Duffy may be the forerunner of other deals cooking between the Victoria and New Westminster clubs," Hutchinson said.

PATRICK IN EAST

Meanwhile, president Lester Patrick of the Cougars is in the east looking over the player situation. This weekend he will visit son Lynn and general manager Art Ross with the object of finding out if the Boston Bruins will be able to send the Cougars any player help.

Patrick will be in Montreal next week to meet Frank Selke, general manager of the Canadiens, the N.H.L. club that holds a working agreement with Victoria. Patrick's first job there will be to look into the question of selecting a coach for the Cougars. Canadiens have suggested a man to work as playing coach but Patrick wants to interview him before making a decision. Announcement of the appointment of a coach is expected to be made within the next 10 days.

The Shot That Won For Rocks

Indians' goalkeeper Stan Joseph was his usual spectacular self at the Memorial Arena last night as the Shamrocks and Tribe battled it out in the fourth game of their Intercity Lacrosse semifinal series but he fanned on shot and it cost his team victory. Art Green, forward on the Rocks' first-string line, can be seen firing the ball (arrow) into the net for the winning goal in the fourth period. Other players are Denny Huddleston of the Indians (9), Ed Popham of the Shamrocks, being checked by Alf Brenner, centre, and Glen Johnson, Indians, near goal. Referee is Bill Wilkes.

SPORT WEEK

By JOHN LARDNER

IT'S a funny thing about my friend Harry Hopman, who at this very moment is wrapping up a silver cup and saucer, the gift of a Mr. Davis, to take home with him to Melbourne, Australia. Sometimes you don't think Mr. Hopman knows there's a war going on. There are other times when you're pretty sure he does.

To begin with, Harry and all his fellow countrymen feel a deep, burning affection for that silverware of Davis's. What they do with it when they have it, I don't know. It could bathe and lodge six duck-billed platypuses, or platypi, but, as far as can be learned, it doesn't. It just lies around in a bank vault, taking up room, while Mr. Hopman walks up and down Collins Street, Melbourne, with a look of dreamy contentment on his kisser, and generally speaking, other Australians do the same thing on their own streets.

They Don't Turn Pro

WHEN it comes to coping this cup, Australians are capable of any length of guile and determination. They admit that with them, everything else runs for Sweeney. We hear them say it, but we sometimes forget it. In 1938, the doubles team of Quist and Bromwich was chased off the court by Budge and Mako in our national doubles championships. A week or so later, with the Davis Cup at stake, but with many thoughtful people betting their shirts on Budge and Mako to render a repeat performance, Quist and Bromwich up and kicked our doubles team in the teeth, in four sets.

The trouble for Australia has been that when a country of 8,000,000 population competes with a country of 140,000,000 to 150,000,000 population, even those patriotic upsets must be few and far between. We have adjusted the difference somewhat by turning our best tennis amateurs pro (a subtle distinction) as fast as they qualify for the big money, while any Australian Davis Cup man who turned pro (it's subtle down there, too) would be hanged from a lamppost for high treason. Nevertheless, it's uphill work for the Australian Commonwealth.

Great Sense Of Timing

SO THEY must conserve their chips for one big cup stroke*every now and then. And here we come to that sense of timing that Mr. Harry Hopman seems to have inherited.

In 1914, a good-sized war broke out, or so we are told. The Australians, who had been running second and third till then, immediately won the Davis Cup. They could not face the prospect of not even being able to look at the grand old ewer for four long years.

When that war ended, they had to throw it back in the pot. Luck ran against them for a long time, after that. Then came the year 1939. The first week of September was a wild and grim one. Germany went to war with France and England; ships at sea batteded down their hatches; neutral nations began to warm up in the bullpen. At Haverford, Pa., the Australian Davis Cup team, now captained by Harry Hopman, was two matches down to the United States. Long years of cuplessness loomed ahead. The Australians swept the last three matches and took the silver home to sleep on.

It was a week this writer cannot forget. So, when I came to meet Mr. Hopman in Melbourne in 1942, I spoke of it warmly: "Do you recall that week at the Merion Cricket Club, when the war began?"

Mr. Hopman did not exactly say "What war?" He scratched his head, and a small frown appeared on his face. "You mean the week we won the Cup," he said. "Certainly I remember it. Remember it clearly. Quist wouldn't do a thing I told him to."

Has One-Track Mind

IT IS clear that Mr. Hopman's memory runs along very special lines. The same thing is true of ballplayers, football coaches, fighters, jockeys, housewives, mules, and small children—that is, the ones who win. It may be that it is pure coincidence that Mr. Hopman's team won the Cup in 1939 and again in 1950, when there is some small possibility of international tennis, and other peaceful works, being in for a period on the sidelines.

It may also be that Mr. Hopman had a corner of one eye on Korea. Whether he did or not, the middles of both were focused sharply and accurately on ways and means of winning tennis matches for Australia.

Green's Goal Was 'Real Sweet One'

Rocks Square Series; Adanacs Gain Finals

By BILL WALKER

Early this season, some fan—a girl, perhaps—hung a moniker on Shamrocks' Art Green.

Art took the usual round of ribbing from his mates over the nom de plume and as the season ran its course the pseudonym was almost forgotten. That is until last night.

Green, as every avid lacrosse fan should know by now, scored the winning goal as Shamrocks defeated Indians, 6 to 5, to force a fifth game in the Intercity Lacrosse League semifinal series.

Green's goal was a "sweet one" to the Rocks and to the jammed Memorial Arena through which almost lifted the barrel-type roof from its moorings when the final whistle sounded.

His nickname—but please remember before you use it that Green is a better-than-average amateur boxer—is "Sweet One," and now the Irish chorus is on to the workhorse forward once more.

Though it fell to the lot of Green to become the hero of the piece, the Rocks as a whole were full value for their victory in a game that was as close as the next second.

COME FROM BEHIND

Never more than one goal separated the two clubs in the tension-filled contest that was different from the preceding playoff contests as night in from day. Three times the Rocks were forced to come from behind and they showed their true mettle in the final quarter when they overcame the tribe's 5-to-4 bulge to salvage a thrill-packed decision.

Referees Bill Wilkes and Gordy Folka got the game in hand early and had complete control of the situation from start to finish. It was quite a different tale from the third game of the series when Shamrocks protested bitterly over the officiating of Pete Meehan and Sid Greenwood.

Manager Ralph Baker of the Shamrocks said today he would make a formal application to the Intercity League commission that Meehan and Greenwood not be named as officials for Tuesday night's deciding game of the series at Vancouver Forum.

COATES STANDOUT

Quiet, unobtrusive 29-year-old Norm Coates deserves more than passing mention for his part in the Shamrock victory. Norm was the outstanding player on the floor offensively and he kept a brilliant Stan Joseph in the Indian goal on edge with his low-slung bullet drives.

Coates scored the Rocks' fourth goal which gave the locals a 4-to-3 lead in the third quarter and then fired home the equalizer after the Indians had taken their 5-to-4 margin early in the final stanza.

Bill Andrews and Joseph were on a par in the respective nets. Both were spectacular, especially in the second period, but Andrews rose to the greatest heights when he stopped Bo Bradford, alone and unchecked, on the doorstep with only 15 seconds left in the game.

ADANACS IN FINAL

Meanwhile over on the mainland New Westminster Adanacs gained the finals with a 16 to 6 triumph over the Dominion champion Burrards. It was Adanacs' third win as against one defeat in the best-of-five series.

The superiority of the yellow-jackets was evident from the start as they took a 3 to 0 lead in the first two minutes of the game; they were on top 6 to 2 at the quarter, 8 to 4 at the half and 11 to 5 at three-quarter time. John Douglas and Jack North-up each scored four goals to set the pace.

From the press box, John McKay, Indian forward, missed the

Vancouver Pair Reach Finals In Men's Tournament

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—The internationally famous silver Totem Pole golf trophy will go back to Vancouver today for the first time since 1928. An all-Vancouver men's final at the 21st annual Totem Pole golf tournament was assured Friday when Walter McElroy and Norman Wilkinson won their semifinal rounds.

Mrs. Jack Todd of Victoria, scored an easy 5 and 4 victory over Mrs. R. H. Cleat of Vancouver to win the women's championship. Mrs. Cleat's putting trouble had her trailing from the start.

McElroy won 2 up over A. E. Wilson of Detroit, while Wilkinson defeated Murray Marsh of Seattle 4 and 2. Whereas Wilkinson took possession of his match in the early stages, McElroy and Wilson were deadlocked at the end of 15 holes before the Vancouver golfer won the 16th, halved the 17th and took the 18th.

Pro Patria Boxla Club In Playoff Tilt Here Sunday

Pro Patria juvenile A lacrosse team will make its bid for a final berth in the British Columbia playdowns at the Memorial Arena Sunday afternoon at 3.

The local Legion squad, which through the season competed on even terms against the Jokers junior unit, will meet Hasting Bluebirds of Vancouver in a sudden-death game for the right to play in the provincial finals in the interior.

Experienced observers feel that the Pro Pats, coached by Norm Allen, have a good chance of going all the way.

By PETE SALLAWAY, Times Sports Editor

Call of the sea runs strong in some men. Take Dewey Soriano for example. Learned today that the big good-natured president of the Yakima Bears of the Western International League plans on selling out his interests in the club and resuming his career in the merchant marine. Soriano, who holds his master's ticket, saw a lot of the world's waterways during the Second World War. Two years ago Soriano bought into the Yakima club in a three-way deal with Junior Mercey and the San Francisco Seals and it looked as if the big pitcher was launched on a new baseball career as an executive. The Yakima promotion has proven successful, especially this season, but apparently Soriano figures a career at sea holds a greater future. In that regard he may be correct. After all, the Bears have experienced two good years financially and no one can foretell what the 1951 campaign holds. And this success should prove a good point when he attempts to unload his stock.

His Departure Loss To W.I.L.

Soriano's departure from Yakima will be a loss to the league. Not only will the W.I.L. lose a promising young executive but also a top-ranking pitcher. True, Dewey has been bothered with a sore arm most of the current season but he still was a drawing card every time he took his turn on the mound. Soriano occupied a novel position in baseball—that of president-pitcher—but Dewey was always just one of the boys when he was in uniform. He never pulled his position on anybody.

Sox Make McCarthy Look Bad

With the Boston Red Sox engaged in a great September drive for first place in the American League one wonders just how Joe McCarthy feels. There is a good chance that Marse Joe can lose a reputation it took him 30 years to build. McCarthy's critics are sharpening their axes in event that the Sox win the flag. The club was buried in fourth place, just two games above the .500 level, when McCarthy finally tossed in the towel and Steve O'Neill took over his job. A Boston victory would create a field day for every second-guesser who might choose to pull apart McCarthy's reputation as a manager. It is a fact that the reputation McCarthy built by winning eight pennants and seven world championships as manager of the New York Yankees can experience an awful kicking around.

Grayson Named Phillies

Harry Grayson, a regular contributor to the Victoria Times in his position as sports editor of NEA (Newspaper Enterprise Association), is the man who named the Phillies the Whiz Kids. One of Grayson's most prized possessions is a handsome cigarette lighter which bears the inscription: "In appreciation to Harry Grayson, the man who named us the Whiz Kids." Signed, "The Phillies." Grayson received the lighter in a presentation in the Phillies clubhouse during a series at Brooklyn. Shortstop Granny Hamner handed over the lighter before the entire club.

Grayson also holds the distinction of being the lone sports writer, with an international following, to pick the Phillies to win the National League pennant last spring.

Pep-Saddler Fail To Solve Problem

NEW YORK (AP)—The bizarre wind-up of the Willie Pep-Sandy Saddler fight last night gave Saddler the featherweight championship and Pep a dislocated left shoulder, but it still didn't answer the No. 1 question: "Who is the better man?" So today it appears that wily Willie and slasher Sandy will have it out again for the fourth time this February at Madison Square Garden, scene of their first two thrillers. Matchmaker Al Weill of the International Boxing Club said the two gladiators are signed for a return that month.

A record crowd and gate for "little men"—38,781 fans and $262,150—watched in stunned silence last night as the skinny, hard-hitting, 24-year-old negro was re-crowned champion of the world while Pep sat sadly on his stool in a corner of the ring. The surprising finish came as the bell sounded for the start of the eighth round of what had been a great scrap thus far. Referee Ruby Goldstein waved off the onrushing Saddler and announcer Johnny Addie told the puzzled throng that Pep had dislocated his left shoulder and could not continue. According to New York rules it was listed as an eight-round knockout.

SHOULDER RESET
Pep claimed the dislocation was caused by Saddler's wrestling tactics.

Phils Whip Dodgers To End Loss Streak

Eddie Sawyer and his Philadelphia Whiz Kids are looking forward today to smoother sailing. The youthful pennant seekers were given a real scare the last few days, but thanks to a couple of old hands, Russ Meyer and Eddie Waitkus, the Phils once again enjoy a commanding 5½-game lead in the National League race.

Meyer and Waitkus teamed up to end a five-game losing streak and give the Phils a 4 to 3 victory over the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers last night in the finale of a four-game series, after the Dodgers had won the first three games.

Sawyer entrusted the important fourth-game assignment to the temperamental Meyer. The 26-year-old right-hander, who hadn't pitched a complete game since July 5, came through brilliantly to restore the Phils to a healthy lead.

Detroit crawled half a game ahead of the runner-up New York Yankees in the nip-and-tuck American League flag battle. The Tigers edged the White Sox 3 to 2 in a night game at Chicago, while the Yanks and third-place Boston Red Sox were idle.

WIN IN NINTH

Vic Wertz singled home Don Kolloway with the Tigers' winning run in the ninth inning to give veteran Dizzy Trout his 12th victory. Lefty Bob Cain was the loser.

The lowly St. Louis Browns just knocked Cleveland Indians out of contention by taking a two-night doubleheader from the Tribe, 5 to 4 and 6 to 0. The defeats dumped the fourth-place Indians 5½ games behind.

St. Louis spotted Cleveland a 4 to 0 lead in the opener but fought back and tied the score in the eighth when Sherm Lollar homered. Ken Wood singled George Stinewiss home from second with the winning run in the ninth. Don Johnson, a former Yankee, blanked the Indians on seven hits in the finale in out-pitching 20-game winner Bob Lemon.

Sportsmen To Sharpen Up For Openings

Rifle, Shotgun Meets Tomorrow; Fishing Reports

By ROY THORSEN

Riflemen and scattergunners will be in the action limelight on the sportsmen's front tomorrow.

Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association rifle marksmen will take on the S.V.I. Rangers' best in that field at the Rangers' club grounds range at Luxton starting at 10 in the morning.

Nimrods who want to test their marksmanship for the coming grouse season will converge with shootin' irons on the grounds of the Victoria Gun Club off Albert Tread Road for a sportsman's special program. It starts at 2 and will continue until dusk. There will be skeet and trap shooting and there's a "welcome to all" invitation from the club officials.

Victoria Fish and Game Club will hold their monthly meeting Tuesday night at 8 in the C.C.F. Hall, while the Rangers' "play it safe with firearms" movie show will be on Monday night at the Army, Navy and Air Force club building.

Owing to a couple of words being left out in the game regulations there are two versions on the open blue grouse season on the island. Game department officials point out it is illegal to shoot blues anywhere on the island before Sept. 16. Willow grouse are not legal targets until Oct. 14.

There's some nice coho fishing off Comox and Campbell River. Sgt. Eric Elwell, Saanich police, got three coho Wednesday off Bazan Bay and Sidney Island.

There is still a good supply of grisle, small springs and coho in Saanich Inlet.

Les Dicks, former anglers' president, reeled in a 23-pound spring in Brentwood Bay Monday with a plug. In the same area George Mann took 11 grisle with 20 feet of line out and using spinner and worm.

C.P.R. Pair Take Rose Bowl Trophy

Mrs. Moorhouse and Mrs. MacDonald of the Canadian Pacific Club won the recent Rose Bowl women's lawn bowling competition held at the Canadian Pacific Club.

Runners-up were Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Hiquelbrun of Victoria West.

Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. MacGregor of Canadian Pacific took B division honors with Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Moody of Victoria club second.

Women's Tourney

Women's club championship will open at the Gorge Vale Golf Club Sunday.

Draw and starting times follow:

Grid League To Open Sept. 24
A four-team Senior Canadian Football League has been organized in the city with league play to commence Sept. 24.

The teams are: Whitney's Blue Devils, Mitchell's Vampires, West's Gobblins and Royal Roads. Games will be played at Heywood Avenue.

The season's opener has Blue Devils meeting Gobblins at 2:30.

COLWOOD GOLF

In the women's monthly medal competition at the Colwood Golf Club Mrs. T. Matson and Elizabeth Paynter tied in A division, each with a net score of 77. Winner of the B division was Mrs. H. Yeaton with a net 75.

Hedgecock Pitches A's To Thrilling Victory In 11th

By PETE SALLAWAY

Victoria Athletics and Vancouver Capilanos are playing no favorites. The two Canadian clubs are carrying the W.I.L. pennant race right down to the wire. With Jim Hedgecock coming up with another terrific pitching performance the Athletics posted their second straight victory over the Yakima Bears last night at Athletic Park, 4 to 3, in 11 innings. Over at Vancouver the Caps trimmed Tacoma 4 to 2, leaving the Tigers still in first place by half a game margin. The four clubs engage in twin bills today and the 1950 league winners will be decided on the results.

Continuing to look like champions, despite their fifth-place standing, the Athletics combed three Yakima pitchers for 16 hits with shortstop Billy Dunn and catcher Al Ronning showing the way. Dunn got four for five, including a two-run homer to tie the score at 2 to 2 in the third, while Ronning picked up five for six to continue his sensational hitting streak in recent games.

SORIANO LOSER

For the second successive night the big right-hander Dewey Soriano was the loser. Rushed in to replace Lloyd Dickey, Yakima's second hurler, with one away in the ninth and two on, Soriano put out the fire only to get charged with the loss two innings later.

With one away in the 11th, Marty Krug drew a base on balls. Ronning, who had previously given the A's a one-run margin in the seventh by driving in their third run with his fourth hit, lined the ball into left center. Krug going all the way to third. That resulted in a conference around the mound and it was decided to pitch to Gene Thompson. On the first pitch Gene doubled to left field and the game was over.

Hedgecock, in marking up his 13th victory of the season, never looked better. After the Bears got to him for two runs, only one of which was earned, in the third inning on three hits along with a couple of boots by his teammates he pitched shutout ball until the ninth. And he was one strike away from winning in regulation time when pinch-hitter Frank Mascaro singled to right centre to drive home Nini Tornay, who had doubled to open the frame, with the tying run.

Athletics picked up a hit in every inning but the sixth, but starter Bill Bradford was rough in the clutches. He was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the ninth.

One of the highlights of the game was the defensive play of the respective third basemen, Johnny Hack for the A's and Rene Cheso. The pair came up with several beautiful pick-ups on hard-hit ground smashes. Victoria's starting pitchers today will be either Ronnie Smith or Aldon Wilkie in the afternoon and John Marshall tonight.

Elsewhere in the league Soriano kane got to pitcher Joe Orrell for a 7 to 5 victory over the visiting Tri-City Braves, while last-place Salem was slugged by Wenatchee 10 to 1.

Watched By World Oil Interests

Oil interests all over the world have been watching the ever-increasing development illustrated in this map.

ALBERTA OIL REPORT

Accelerated Pace Of Development In South

By C. V. MYERS

CALGARY — The above map shows the oil development picture in Alberta and in what regionally is a part of the same area, northern Montana. The Midson line covers the entire area except north of the line of "pinch out." Above this line the Cretaceous lies on top of the Devonian. Below this line the Madison is sandwiched between the Cretaceous and Devonian.

Thus the southern part of Alberta has oil prospects in Cretaceous, Madison and Devonian.

A decade ago the only Alberta oil field was the Madison Limestone field in Turner Valley and the Cretaceous field at Wainwright.

By 1945 Cretaceous pools of heavy oil were discovered at Vermilion, Lloydminster and at Taber in southern Alberta, also a Jurassic sand pool at Conrad.

In 1947 Imperial Oil opened up the territory in the northern part of the province by the discovery of Leduc. The entire oil search was concentrated in the north leaving the older Madison prospects in the south virtually abandoned.

Leduc was followed in quick succession by Golden Spike, Stettler, and the fabulous Redwater field, all Devonian coral reef reservoirs. Smaller strikes were made at Excelsior in the Devonian and some sand accumulations were found at White mud and Joseph Lake.

LIMITED EXPLORATION

Meanwhile limited exploration has found the Jumping Pound gas field and the Pincher Creek condensate field, both Madison accumulations similar to Turner Valley.

During the early part of this year a fourth Madison strike was made near the Blood Indian Reserve just northwest of the Cutbank field in Montana. In the past few weeks this was followed by a new coral reef at Stony Plain and a discovery near the top of the Devonian Socony line (New Norway).

The map shows where oil has been found and in what horizons it may be found. The Cretaceous is prospective all over Alberta and it has already produced numerous gas showings not shown on the map.

So far no reefs as they are known at Leduc and Redwater have been found in the southern part of the province

Millwood Shortage Reported In City

Shortage Of Workers, Increase In Demand Cause; Improvement Soon

A shortage of cordwood and millwood is reported by Victoria wood dealers.

Dealers said the shortage was due to increased orders during the past month and the difficulty of obtaining wood supplies from the mills.

"I was informed that most of the scrap wood used as millwood was being shipped to Seattle," said one dealer. "Other mills report they haven't got any supplies."

The majority of dealers were of the opinion that the shortage would be of short duration and that by next month, there would be ample supplies of wood on hand.

Insofar as cordwood was concerned, dealers said it was difficult to get because few workers were available to cut the wood into lengths.

They advised people to put in their orders this month if they wanted to get dry wood.

Employment Here At Year's High

Employment in Victoria now is at its highest peak of the year, according to C. A. Mudge, manager of the National Employment Service offices here.

There was still a demand for skilled tradesmen in many lines, indicating local industries were operating at full capacity, he said.

In addition, he noted increased business in laundries and dry cleaning plants had created an urgent demand for experienced workers.

For careless driving, Mrs. M. J. Pryke, 2278 Dalhousie Street, was fined $35 by Magistrate H. C. Hall in Oak Bay police court Friday afternoon.

3,000 At Park To See Winners Of Amateur Contest

Nearly 3,000 people went to Beacon Hill Park Friday night to witness the finals of a five-week amateur contest held under the auspices of the Victoria Parks Board.

Contest winners were Billy Brankston, 12-year-old boy soprano from Nanaimo, who took the crown in the class for youngsters 12 and under; brothers Conrad and Roland Schiller, 837 Heywood Avenue, played piano and accordion to top the 12 to 18 class, and Frank Lavery, who played the autoharp and harmonica, to win the senior's title.

Winners were presented with silver rose bowls presented by Brock Whitney.

STILL PROTESTING

A man who was convicted on a third offence for being intoxicated in a public place, was still angrily protesting "but I'm still not guilty" as he was being led back to the city police cells today to serve a 20-day jail term.

$150 VEHICLE DAMAGE

City police said that nearly $75 damage was done to each of the cars driven by Harry W. Norris, 146 Clarence Street, and Denis Roberts, 1039 Richardson Street, when they collided Friday afternoon at Cormorant and Broad Street.

2,000 Chest Canvassers To Be Headed By Moore

CLARENCE E. MOORE

Complex task of organizing the army of 2,000 residential canvassers who will blanket the city in the spectacular one-night Community Chest drive will be handled by Clarence E. Moore, 1558 Beach Drive.

Announcement of the appointment of the retired business man was made today by Art Roberts and John McCormack, co-chairman of the campaign.

Meanwhile, the "Stay Where You Live Until You Give" scheme, in which citizens will be asked to stay at home with their porch lights on for one evening (Oct. 2), is developing under the expert efforts of prominent local men from many types of business and industry.

The abbreviated "lights on" drive, first of its kind ever attempted in Canada, has as its objective $181,000.

The money will be used for the Community Chest's 17 member services, including the major beneficiary, the Children's Aid and Family Welfare Society.

New Features At Youth Meeting

Two new features will be on the program of the Youth for Christ gathering at the Glad Tidings Tabernacle at 7:45 this evening.

They are the "Mystery Pastor of the Week," and an item called "Youth Speaks Its Mind." Other highlights on the program include music by 11-year-old soloist Charlie Thompson, boy soprano Bill Ratcliffe and euphonium player Johnny Cowper-Smith. Bert Nelson will lead the singing.

57 FOREST FIRES IN PROVINCE THIS WEEK; FIGHTING COSTS UP

Fifty-seven forest fires broke out in the province this week and 43 still are burning, it was learned today from the B.C. Forest Service.

The 57 brings the total for the year to date to 1,221. Last year there had been 1,559 fires at this time.

Cost this year of fighting fires is above last year's expenditure. The 1,221 fires in 1950 have cost $105,019 while the greater number in 1949 cost $77,456.

One Of Last Unexplored Areas Being Opened Up

One of the last large areas of the world hitherto unexplored is now being surveyed by the government of Peru, which is interested in opening up the jungle of its northwest territory and inviting surplus populations from crowded European countries to settle there.

Geoffrey Morkill, who brings this information to Victoria direct from Lima, reports the climate in this particular section of Peru is known to be ideally suited for Europeans and is believed to be particularly rich in natural resources.

"The country has been flown over and from the air it's a regular Amazon jungle. But the government is planning to put a railway through it. Air surveys have determined it is feasible to do so and now they are beginning to make a land check."

Mr. Morkill is vitally interested in the project as the government railway will take up where the railway leaves off.

Mr. Morkill is general manager of the Central Railway of Peru, one of two chief railroad systems in that country operated by the same British firm.

HIGHEST IN WORLD

The Central line, which runs from the coast over the Andes mountains to the wealthy mining district of Cerro de Pasco, has the distinction of being the highest standard-gauge railroad in the world. At its highest point, the railway reaches an altitude of 15,935 feet. (Compare this with the Kicking Horse Pass where C.P.R. trains cross the Rockies at an altitude of 5,339 feet, or the Yellowhead Pass, on the C.N.R. route, where the elevation is 3,711 feet.)

Special-type engines, needless to say, are required for the run. One of the company's most powerful locomotives, which manages a 350-ton train on the Andes climb where the grade is as much as four and one-half per cent, would be capable of pulling a 5,000-ton train on the level.

Coming down, it is possible for men on hand cars—or gandy rigs as they are sometimes called—to coast 300 miles right into Lima. The route is all downhill. Men on such cars proceed every train, by the way, to watch out for avalanches, which are so frequent they constitute the line's biggest problem.

600 MILES LONG

The proposed government railway will be about 600 miles in length and will go from Cerro de Pasco to Iquitos, a navigable port about 3,000 miles up the Amazon river; once one of Peru's biggest rubber-export posts.

As the country between will be opened to people from all nations, the Peruvian government is trying to interest United Nations in the project.

Mr. Morkill believes the U.N. might do well to assist in the venture.

Third in a line of railwaymen, Mr. Morkill has five more years to serve in Peru before his retirement. He is considering coming to live in Victoria when he finishes railroad work, just as his father did before him.

His father, William Morkill, died in this city after 40 years of railroading in Brazil, Argentina, Mexico and Peru.

Mr. Morkill's grandfather, Richard Morkill, was the first railroad man in the family. He worked for the Quebec Central Railroad in Canada when he immigrated to this country from Yorkshire.

Mr. Morkill's sons are carrying the family railroad tradition into its fourth generation.

The older son, Frank, is already working on the railroad in Peru, while the younger son, Geoffrey, Jr., is just entering Queens University to take up mechanical engineering.

Property Owner Protests City Improvement By-Law

A protest against any increase in taxes or imposition of any extra charges against his property, if the proposed council-initiated local improvement by-law for Bank Street goes through, was lodged by Robert M. C. Hemberow, 971 Bank Street in a letter to City Council Friday.

The by-law in question is the first the city has launched since it regained its right to do so. The by-law would result in construction of a five-foot-wide concrete sidewalk and laying of new water mains along the east side of Bank Street between Brighton and Quamichan at a cost of $1,323.

Mr. Hemberow claimed the work was not necessary because pedestrian traffic on Bank Street was negligible.

Stocks Jump Around But Abbott's Budget Brings Uptrend At Week-End

By FRANK KAPLAN

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock markets bounced around briskly this week, finishing on an upward trend.

Interest was comparatively high and business brisk over the four days. Markets were closed Monday, Labor Day.

Price movements were reflecting day-to-day events and news more quickly than in previous weeks. Most predominant feeling on markets during the week was that of uncertainty. Biggest news for Canadian investors was Finance Minister Abbott's baby budget.

Reports of a possible excess profits tax and generally-increased corporation taxes were current in Canadian business circles prior to presentation of the budget Thursday night. As it turned out, business circles felt that they got a break.

Things didn't change very much. Corporation taxes were increased slightly but there was no price control and no excess profits tax.

However, Canadian security markets early in the week were sluggish, awaiting the budget proposals. Heavy selling pushed leaders sharply lower Wednesday in the worst market break since the outbreak of fighting in Korea but heavy buying Friday almost completely recovered the losses.

In Toronto, the exchange's index of representative stocks showed a small loss of .30 over the four days trading.

News of a sharp boost in zinc and lead prices brought buyers flocking into the base metal issue Friday. That list gained 2.71 on the index. Western oils attracted considerable attention early in the week for an increase of 1.46, while leading gold producers lost 1.53. Generally, gold stocks are considered a depression hedge and are ignored by investors during rising industrial markets.

Changes on the Montreal averages were: Banks off .04; util-ties off .1; industrials off .1; combined off .2; papers up .03; golds off .05.

New York was comparatively sluggish. Gentle buying boosted prices Tuesday but demand faded Wednesday. Rails were in heavy demand Thursday and fresh general buying pushed leaders ahead Friday. The Associated Press 60-stock average closed Friday at 79.5, a gain of .8 from the previous Friday.

Grain markets were irregular. In Chicago, September wheat eased, while corn, oats and rye gained. In Winnipeg, gains ranged up to four cents in October oats, barley, rye and flax.

$850,000,000 For Defence Approved

If Special Force Goes Anywhere But Korea, Parliament To Decide

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament will make the final decision about the destination of Canada's special army force, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Friday night, and it might or might not be Korea.

No step taken by this special session will authorize the cabinet to send the force anywhere but Korea, he assured the Commons. If it goes elsewhere, the final decision will be Parliament's at a later session.

He spoke late in a three-sitting day that saw the Commons approve the second and third of the major measures placed before members less than two weeks ago.

The first bill approved was the one that got the railways running. The second was one to authorize the government to spend $850,000,000 in this and future years to rearm Canada, to build up the forces and to ship arms to Europe.

The third, passed late at night, was the bill to authorize the government to place any part of the armed forces on active service—roughly a war footing—to fulfill Canada's obligations to the United Nations.

STAND-BY POWERS
That left the members still confronted with Trade Minister Howe's bill to give stand-by powers over prices and direction of strategic materials, with Finance Minister Abbott's budget and certain less-important measures.

Mr. St. Laurent intervened in debate on the active service measure to tell how the government plans to authorize dispatch of the army's special force.

Under present circumstances, he said, Korea still is assumed to be the theatre where the brigade will fight when it is ready.

The Prime Minister's intervention came after Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (P.C.-Nanaimo) and Stanley Knowles (C.C.F.-Winnipeg North Centre) had asked for clarification of the situation arising from the fact that it is the law that Parliament must be recalled within 10 days after the forces are placed on active service.

Mr. St. Laurent said the government has every intention of conforming with that 46-year-old law. Parliament would approve or reject any warlike move on which the cabinet decided.

The bill itself did not cover the dispatch of the special force to Korea. It said the broad basis for such moves and authorization to send the force to Korea would be done by order-in-council and those orders would be placed before the House at this session.

The bill established the right of the government to place any part of the forces on active service to back Canada's U.N. obligations.

An executive order by the cabinet, that is an order-in-council, would establish what forces would go and where. But those orders would be placed before Parliament for approval.

Friday also saw:
1. A motion by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, regretting the government's "refusal" to appoint a House committee on defence defeated by a vote of 142 to 43.

2. A C.C.F. motion for nationalization of the "production and sale of munitions and armaments" defeated 156 to 12.

3. Clarie Gillis (C.C.F.-Cape Breton South) call for appointment of workers' representatives to national industrial councils which would do the work dollar-a-year controllers did in the last war.

4. Capt. Victor Quelch (S.C.-Acadia, Alta.), a Military Cross winner in the First World War, defend arms-making profits because, he said, they are only part of the great prosperity Canada came to know in the war and postwar years.

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW

Vivien Leigh, Olivier Discover Square Dancing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—They had a press conference for Vivien Leigh and you'd be surprised at the things she discussed.

Such things as avocados, square dancing and nonshifting cars.

A number of the press were ushered into an extra fancy dining-room near the set of "A Streetcar Named Desire." Miss Leigh's first American film in 10 years. She soon appeared, dressed in a faded dressing-gown and a blonde wig for her role. She proved to be more down to earth than the classy surroundings.

"We discovered square dancing," she reported, speaking of herself and her husband, "Sir Laurence Olivier, also here for a film role."

"I was the first we'd ever done and we found it great fun. We went to a party for children at Edna Best's, intending to stay a half-hour. We stayed all evening and had a wonderful time. Square dancing seems to be the best possible way to get one's exercise."

Someone asked if she is driving a car in California. "Oh, no," she replied. "The traffic is too terrible. And I wouldn't want to try one of those cars that shifts itself, like the ones you have here. I like to shift gears and put in the clutch, not have the car drive itself. That frightens me."

What food is she enjoying most that she didn't get in England? There was no hesitation: "Avocados!"

Miss Leigh dropped one remark that set the reporters scribbling. Asked about Olivier's plans to film more Shakespeare, she replied: "I don't think he'd reveal. If he did, Orson Welles might start filming the same thing immediately."

Trials For Two In Same Accident
Trials of Alma M. Duke, Royal Jubilee Hospital nurse, and Luke R. Teele, 3132 Jackson Street, both charged with careless driving, were remanded to next Tuesday by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court Friday. Both have pleaded not guilty.

Charges were laid following an accident in which they are alleged to have been involved. The Teele case opened but was adjourned when a Crown witness failed to appear. Donald Cameron is counsel for Teele and J. G. Rutten is acting for Miss Duke.

New German Encyclopedia Gives Most Space To Hitler, Nazi Era

By HERMANN TINN

BERLIN (CP)—The individual to get most space and attention in a new German encyclopedia is Adolf Hitler.

The man who inflicted misery and death on millions has been given far more wordage than any other figure of world importance in past or present.

The compilers of "Knaur's Lexicon A-Z," a handy-sized volume, allotted 78 lines to the former Fuehrer. By comparison, only 25 lines are reserved for Bismarck.

In addition, there are two complete pages and many insertions devoted to a detailed history of the National Socialist (Nazi) Party and its affiliated organizations, including the Gestapo. In a special black-rimmed box, closely resembling a Nazi memorial plaque, each gauleiter's fate is related.

As for Hitler's foes, Franklin D. Roosevelt has been given 20 lines, Stalin 17, and Churchill only 15. Pope Pius has six lines. West German Federal Chancellor Konrad Adenauer gets eight.

MUSSOLINI, TOO

Hitler's blood-thirsty police chief, Heinrich Himmler, organizer of the concentration camps, has 17 lines with his titles being listed in full. Mussolini is portrayed in 18 lines.

The Lexicon says Hitler's 25-point prewar political program met with the "national feelings and desires of the German people... who resented the Versailles Peace Treaty and disarmament."

The refusal to pay reparations for the First World War, the establishment of a Wehrmacht, compulsory labor service for the sake of the community, social insurance and old age pension schemes are termed "national and popular with the German people."

The authors, however, call Hitler a "ruthless dictator who sought compliance with his plans with brutality."

The mass murders of Jews and other enemies of the Nazi regime are described as "crimes against humanity."

"Knaur's Lexicon" has been a traditional reference book in Germany for decades. But one West Berlin newspaper has complained that the first postwar edition pays too much attention to the Nazi era.

By ART STOTT

Probably you didn't care for John Steinbeck's "Wayward Bus." Perhaps I. A. R. Wylie's "The Mad Buisman" was more to your liking. Whatever you thought of the fiction, you couldn't help holding a sneaking regard for the New Yorker who, a couple of years ago, got tired of covering his town route, day in and day out, and lit out for Florida in the company's bus.

Stott

Men who jump their trolleys in a slap-happy way like that lend a little spice to life. It's the kind of thing you might do yourself if you weren't the timid type. You can't help wishing, in a wistful sort of way, that Rolfe Halls would phone up to tell you Scotty was fed up with the Fairfield run and was heading for Campbell River in one of the B.C. Electric's Mack's. You'd chuckle if you got progress reports: "The big cream bus just passed through Duncan, with the driver singing."

THERE'S A pleasant, dream quality to such speculation—the ordinary man's revolt against routine. You wouldn't feel quite so happy about it, though, if you happened to be in a hurry and were waiting at the corner of Fairfield and Cook for the bus Scotty had taken up-land. There are very few personal injustices as keenly resented as those a bus driver can do to you. Listen to a crowd in the peak hour when a loaded carrier passes the people waiting at a corner.

The bus may be so jammed that standees are practically eating the fish and chips some other standee has pressed against his chest on the way home for dinner, but that doesn't influence the men and women left at the stop. For the guys outside, there's always room for one more, and they're the one. When the driver doesn't see it that way, and keeps going, he's just about what a trout angler thinks of a catfish.

THE TROUBLE with public carriers is that they have only so much room for passengers and they have to keep schedules. That schedule proposition's pretty bad. It would be so much easier if you could just call a cab. Much more comfortable, too, and only 10 times the price of a bus fare.

Transit companies have lots of headaches, but the main problem is those of route coverage and frequency. It works this way: A company figures out what it can make on its bus system. With the money available, it has to decide if it will send a lot of buses over a few routes or a few buses over a lot of routes. It can do one or the other. But it can't win. If you live a mile from the bus line, the service is poor. If you live a block away and a bus passes only once in half an hour, the service is poor. The ideal is to send as many buses over as wide a coverage as possible—and still keep fares low enough so people won't get tough and walk.

ON MONDAY THE B.C. Electric is joining other similar outfits on the continent to observe Transit Progress Day. Yep, it's another of those days. It mightn't hurt, though, to take a look at the situation here. It isn't a red-hot subject now. You can see it without the steam rising and distorting the image. In the last two years, since the last streetcar went its merry way to Beacon Hill Park and back, the company has built up a fleet of 110 buses. Five of those are withdrawn from service at a time—for check ups, safety inspection and general tuning. All that will roll are thrown on the streets between 4.30 and 5.30, the traffic peak.

THE CARRIERS in service not only handle larger numbers, they go over a wider area and bring transportation closer to home. Now that Victoria's out of the transition stage, and routes are fairly well established, officials have figures to show that frequencies have been improved. The service is co-ordinated and transfer privileges are more general.

Those are points you might learn from the company's records if you had a mind to make inquiries. It's easier, of course, to go in swinging and complain about the driver who pulled away from the curb when you were only half a block away and your watch showed he was early. Still, on Monday, it wouldn't hurt to let the drivers know that you appreciate the service they do give. Not that we expect the girls to put on kiss-proof lipstick to emphasize the point, but the boys do a pretty good job.

Some Merchants Are 'The Parkers' Friend'

Off-street parking won't solve the car drivers' problems in town, but it would help a great deal if more stores, and the city, got into the swim with such businesses as Standard Furniture, Hudson's Bay Co. and Eaton's. Lot above is Standard's on View Street. Bay and Eaton's have larger car parking facilities.

EARLY ACTION NEEDED HERE

What's To Do About Car Parking Problem? Here Are Few Offerings

(This is the fifth and concluding article on Victoria's parking problems.)

By LLOYD G. BAKER

We've had our day at pointing to the downtown parking problem in Victoria. Now, what's to do about it?

Stop a minute then—don't double park—and consider ways and means of alleviating, if not solving, the thorny situation we've been chatting about.

Off-street parking in the business district has been urged by some civic agencies. But it's going to take more than this offering, surrounded with destructive criticism, to bring relief.

PARKING COMMISSION

We'll go along with the city police whose views are expressed in the words of Sgt. Brooke Douglas of their traffic department:

"It's time a parking board or commission was formed to study the question here and attempt to work out a plan to meet the needs of the city."

We might go a step further. Why not have the City Council bring its public works committee, police, transportation and town planning commission together to study the situation.

Some outside aid would be in order—an engineer with solid experience behind him in working out parking and traffic puzzles of other cities.

We're not saying the question is the entire responsibility of the city, but this could be the starting point.

And while we're at it, the three outside municipalities might lend a hand. Their motorists aren't using sky hooks to tether their cars while they are town-shopping.

Just a minute, now. We'll push our heads into the amalgamation lion's mouth—at a later date.

Back to this off-street parking business: There are those who claim there is property obtainable in a variety of locations where parking lots might be established.

PARKING LOT METERS

The city might use some of its parking meter revenue to buy the land, demolish buildings and hard-surface the area. The city lots might be installed with special meters to reduce costs of attendants. Parking lot meters are used in Calgary, among other cities.

Or consideration might be given to the use of the city's Duck block property at Johnson and Broad as a central parking lot.

Merchants might band together to set up off-street parking accommodation for customers, similar to the lots operated by the Hudson's Bay Co. and Eaton's Department Store.

Open-decked buildings might be erected with elevators to take cars skyward. One such parking lot in Chicago has 16 stories. Underground parking appears out of reason because of costs.

Victoria has many one-story buildings which might provide roof parking facilities. If there is insufficient room for drive-in ramps, elevators again might be put to work. Architects say most buildings are more than equal to holding a roof-load of cars.

CARS DAMAGED

A collision at Fisgard and Blanshard Streets Friday between cars driven by W. C. Ball, 327 Obed Avenue, and Francis W. Davies, 2208 Fernwood Road, caused about $250 damage, city police said. There were no injuries.

"Huge car parking lots could be established on the outskirts of the city with express bus service direct to the city centre."

This plan appears to be one of the most feasible for Victoria. A little education is all that should be required to bring to the motoring public the realization that a quick bus ride over six or seven blocks is better than downtown parking trouble.

"Angle" parking might be returned to a few of the wider downtown streets. Some might be able to take it on both curbs and others on one side only.

In addition to about three times more space for curb parking you get quicker movement of cars. It's estimated the average "angle" park takes 37 seconds while the bumper-bumping parallel park takes 32 seconds.

The real villains of course, are the ones who leave their cars at a meter the better part of a day, defying the spirit of the law with a pocketful of 5-cent pieces.

TOW 'EM AWAY

Why not provide the police with a towing truck, complete with hoist, with which they could drag the offender's car off to a bastille?

Police might call a halt, also, to the double parking which plays havoc with the lawful variety.

Finally, the maintenance boys might get their screwdrivers busy and put right those parking meters which are giving 50 minutes for a nickel instead of 60. On the QT, though, fellas, leave that one up the street alone where the arrow sticks and stops at 45 minutes.

FOUND ON ISLAND

Bald Eagle Becomes Pet Of Ship's Crew

By DAVID STOCK

The crew of the government survey ship, William J. Stewart, has a most unusual pet—a bald eagle.

Little Joe, as the bird is called, is a big, fierce-looking fellow despite the fact he's only two months old. And he chirps like a baritone canary.

Joe has been with the ship for as long as he can remember. He was taken aboard by two surveyors who found him as a tiny and helpless ball of fluff on Sentinel Island, about 50 miles south of Prince Rupert. It was apparent he had fallen from his nest.

He was revived aboard ship by kindly crew members who forced pieces of chopped fish down his throat. Since that time, he's become a regular fixture on the ship and hasn't shown any indication of wanting to leave.

NO SHORE LEAVE

Even when the ship's in port, he never takes shore leave.

Little Joe waddles around the ship, in fact, as though he owns it. Once in a while he'll stretch his great wings and fly from the bow to the stern but he never lets the ship get out from under him.

His favorite perch is on the windlass on the fore'deck. When he's not there, he's sitting up on the wheel aft.

That's during the day, of course. When the sun goes down, Little Joe goes to sleep on coil of rope in a more sheltered part of the ship.

LAZY LIFE

It's a lazy life he leads. Crew members catch fish for him every day so that he's probably the best-fed bald-headed eagle on the coast.

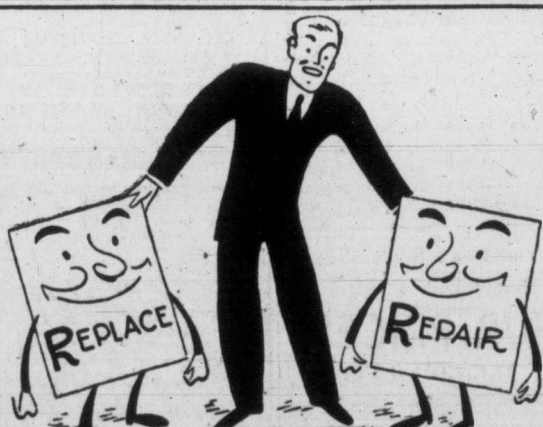

The fish aren't chopped up anymore and forced down Joe's throat. He's learned how to handle them himself.

Joe's main interest seems to be watching the seagulls that fly overhead. So far, he's been satisfied to sit and watch. He's made no attempt to make war.

Joe belongs to the whole crew of 60 on the Stewart but only he's a chosen few handle him. He has no objection, however, to anyone coming and having a real close look. In fact, he seems quite happy about that. Joe is a proud bird and very pleased with himself.

Wool Shortage May Increase Price Of Men's Suits In City

Unable To Reduce Mark-up Margins, Clothiers Predict $2 To $3 Boost

Men's suits are going to go up in price due the acute world wool shortage and rising production costs, Victoria merchants predicted today.

LAUNDRY SENT LONG DISTANCE

Cleaning and ironing in Victoria's laundries must be about the best in Canada if long distance orders are any indication.

The New Method Laundry received a tablecloth, to be laundered and ironed, this week all the way from H.M. C.S. Cornwallis in Nova Scotia.

Police Called To End Row Between Man, Woman, Girl

City police were called to intervene in a three-way fight Friday night between a man, his common-law wife and her daughter, aged 14.

Constables Lorne Shandley and George Buckle found the husband had first assaulted his wife, after which the daughter had struck him over the head with a hard object.

The officers stood by until the two females had gathered their belongings and left for a friend's place. Later the police were called by the landlady because the husband was creating a disturbance. He was finally arrested and booked on a charge of being drunk.

Walla Walla Banker Praises City Team

Victoria Girls' Drill Team has received high praise in a letter from F. E. Quist, assistant manager of the Walla Walla branch, Seattle First National Bank.

The letter, which was received by J. A. Baxter, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, said, in part: "This charming group of ladies appeared at our South-eastern Washington Fair, giving performances which were unusually well received by our public."

MISS DAPHNE HALE

Mystery Of Missing Girl Still Unsolved

A three-day search by police has failed to unravel the mystery of the sudden disappearance of pretty Daphne Mary Morris Hale, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney I. M. Hale, 1692 Earle Street.

The Grade X Victoria High School student has not been seen since finishing her homework last Wednesday night.

Her concerned parents are mystified as Daphne has never left home before. They believe she only had about $2.

Greater Victoria police and R.C.M.P. at up-land points are in the search. Checks with relatives up-land have been fruitless.

Daphne is five feet 10 inches tall, husky built, dark-haired with dark-brown eyes and was wearing a light fawn shortie coat, a grey flannel skirt, yellow pullover sweater and cardigan and tan-buckle shoes.

Anyone seeing a girl of this description is asked to contact police.

MISS JILL DOUGHTY-DAVIES

MR. PETER MACFARLANE

An Early October Wedding Date

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Doughty-Davies, 1140 Rockland Avenue, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Jill, to Peter Deane MacFarlane, grandson of George Buscombe, Vancouver, and at present on the staff of CBC, Toronto. Miss Doughty-Davies holds the position of copy editor at radio station CJVI. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Oct. 7, at the home of the bride-elect.

University Students Wed In Formal Rites In Striking Begonia Setting

Begonias in every tone of pink, graduating from white to rose, in hanging baskets and bowls, with stately standards of all-white gladioli, created a garden setting in First Baptist Church for rites of interest in musical, legal and university circles today at 3.

The principals, Miss Edith Kathryn McGill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. McGill, 1170 Tattersall Drive, and Roger Glen Galloway, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Milton G. Galloway, Webster City, Iowa, will continue studies following their wedding trip.

The bride, majoring in music, and the groom a student of law, will both attend University of Washington.

The delicate rose hues of the all-floral setting created an effective foil for the lovely bride in her slipper satin gown suffused in ivory tones.

From a moulded bodice buttoned to the waistline, voluminous folds of the skirt, accentuating the hip line, cascaded into a full train. Seed pearls enriched the Peter Pan collar and the lily point sleeves.

A cloche of satin trimmed with orange blossoms, held an exquisite veil of Limerick lace, more than a century old, which swept to the hem of the train. The bride carried orchids interspersed with stephanotis and trailing ivy.

Bridal attendants were frocked alike in rich aqua-toned taffeta, the tight bodices offsetting very full skirts. They had matching mittens and coronets touched with delicate pink heather, and carried white gladioli encircled with pink heather.

Miss Trudie McGill was her sister's honor attendant, and another sister, Miss Bobbie McGill with Miss Virginia Hawley, Yakima, were bridesmaids. Sharilyn Widen, gowning as her seniors in glowing aqua, and little Bobbie McGavin attired in a miniature tuxedo suit, were ring bearers.

Rev. G. R. Easter officiated and George Thompson, Webster City, Iowa, was best man. Ushering were William Dement, Walla Walla; William Graham, Eric Goodwin and Lawrence Widen.

Donald Garrard sang "I Love Thee," as the couple signed the register. Betha begonias floating in crystal bowls encircled in pink tulle, were placed on either side of a three-tier wedding cake topped with trailing begonia blossoms, at the reception in Old England Inn. Mrs. R. Helbert, cousin of the groom, and Mrs. McGill, attired in rose-beige gown, with accessories of black velvet, stood in the receiving line with the bridal couple.

For the wedding trip through the eastern states by car, the bride has chosen a soft brown Roxspan worsted suit, brown accessories and winter white wool mohair topcoat.

Her corsage bouquet will be an acidanthers lily.

Last Days Of Summer!

Golden days of early September find Victorians enjoying the last impromptu gatherings of the season around garden fireplaces that have become so popular in the city's residential districts of recent years.

At the Somass Drive home of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Johns there was occasion for an informal party last week-end when Denis Murphy and his friend Larry Johns launched kyaks they made and painted themselves. The boys are pictured below as they christened their craft Donald Duck and Micky. First cruise was to Jimmy Chicken Island where they spent a night out under the stars.

An Egg Cream Shampoo
A Special Beauty Bonus

By PENNY SAVER

Ever perched yourself on a farm fence, toyed with a piece of straw in your mouth, and watched and listened to a bunch of chickens cluck away to themselves? If you haven't, then here's one gal who has. Just the other day as a matter of fact.

Muttering contentedly to themselves, the hens were quite oblivious to me, probably too intent on their work to be bothered with a wide-eyed character from the city. I didn't blame them either. After all who gives this type of bird a second look. As long as she contributes her share to the nest, nought will be said.

But our fine feathered friend not only contributes to that bacon and eggs breakfast of yours she's also responsible for the beauty of many a woman's locks. Egg shampoos, no less... and I've found one well-known beauty company offering a terrific saving on a 16-ounce bottle of egg cream shampoo. The regular eight-ounce size would set you back $1.25 and a bottle twice its size, the sum of $2. But, believe it or not, they're offering to all who are interested... a 16-ounce bottle and a plastic make-up cape worth 75 cents for a two dollar bill.

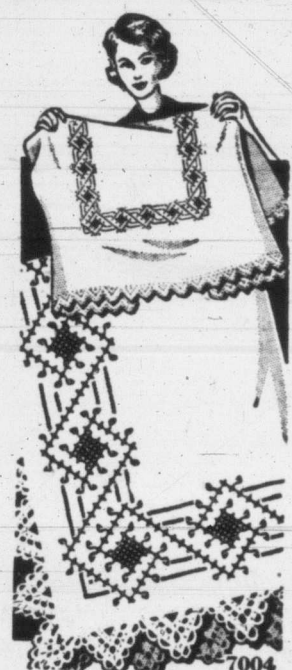

If it's a shiny and a bright-as-a-new-penny mane you're encouraging, the egg will do it!

While you're still in the shiny-bright mood let's haul out the family flivver and give it the once over lightly. Does your auto seem to sag at the heels, have a slight list to port or have that don't care attitude? Does, huh? (sounds like a liver pill add up far) then how about perking up its ego with a silicone process?

No, you don't need a boiler-maker's papers to perform such a feat, only a can of polish and a little elbow grease. Seems there's but one easy operation which involves washing off grit and other dirt from your car's fine body, applying the polish then removing it with a clean cotton cloth. That's it, and the surface will be waterproof.

For 98 pennies you will have enough polish to give your pride

For your dressing table there's an earring rack to take its place among the best of gadgets on your dressing table. The stand sits four inches high with three plastic bars... 4 1/2 inches wide... supported on a plastic base. The all-plastic rack will save on the minutes wasted untangling a great conglomeration of earrings, bracelets, pins and all the little things that usually find their way to a jewelry box. The price is 25 cents and the colors, pastel blue, pink and cream.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It is always such a satisfaction to a parent when someone says of her son, "My isn't he a little man!" Meaning, as implied that he is thoroughly masculine.

But, there are all types of boys and some not as strongly masculine as others. But, regardless of type, boys do learn to act in mannish ways if they are under the influence of a father; and they learn to sneer at females and all games which seem feminine, because early in life they see that this is what pleases other boys. They want to be one of the boys. No boy wants to be called "sissey."

Here is a Daddy who is worried because his boy of 33 months still enjoys playing with his mother's shoes, purse, handkerchief and umbrella. "Thank God he has never been ill," he writes, "but his mother thinks that after a year of playing with these feminine accessories, that he should not want to play with them. Now mother does not know of this letter but I cannot say that she is wrong in being concerned. Neither of us knows when a boy is old enough to begin to pull in one direction. He is given toys for boys and he plays with them very much. Please comment."

Then why should you worry? When he begins at four or so to play predominantly with boys, he will begin to act as they do. Children of that age like to climb and run and yell and they will all have murderous looking guns protruding from holsters or will be wild westerners doing wild things.

I have never known any child of either sex who did not like to dress up in adult garments and it is immaterial to them whether the garments be for male or female. It is always funny to see a cropped-haired boy with his mother's amazing hats perched on his head (Tom Breneman used to make capital of this) and clumping around the house in his mother's high-heeled shoes. Because it is amusing and everyone laughs at him he continues to do it. It has, to me, no other significance.

Mrs. D.S. I remember your previous letter in which you mentioned your fears of the result of the R.H. factor. It is gratifying that you have surmounted the worst ones and I hope that there will be no further developments. Thank you for telling me about it.

Our leaflet No. 1 "The Prospective Mother" may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer-Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Encourages Liberal Women To Share In Community

Routine business took a back seat yesterday afternoon at Liberal Women's Forum opening meeting for the season when provincial president, Mrs. G. W. Kissick, paid a special visit from Vancouver.

Introduced by forum president, Mrs. T. C. Smith, the provincial leader gave her message in simple, direct statements.

"Women today have greater opportunity than ever before to serve Canada," she told them, "simply by upholding principles of democracy on every hand."

She commended members for the active enthusiasm in their own organization, but also warned that they must take part in community efforts in general. In this way their influence can be widespread and they can combat tendencies which threaten democracy, she believes.

She encouraged members to take active interest in current affairs and to keep themselves well informed.

"Never was there a time when it is so necessary for the individual to stand for something; to be positive, to have something to work for," she informed them.

She illustrated the point by telling of a session at United Nations, Lake Success, which she attended recently.

"I heard a representative of tiny Ceylon tell the assembly what his country had to offer. It was most uplifting to learn that every country, no matter how large or small, has something to give. I feel that just as countries must co-operate, so must every individual."

Mrs. Kissick's visit to United Nations sessions, was entirely a side trip "on her own" after she attended the annual convention of National Council of Women in Ontario.

She flew both ways to New York, and in friendly, informal manner gave forum members a brief, humorous account of her first visit in New York.

Mrs. L. A. Lucas gave a vote of thanks.

Refreshments were served by Oak Bay and Esquimalt members. Bright marigolds in a fill-gree bowl flanked with green tapers, centred the table, covered with an ivory cloth.

Hasty pudding, an old Canadian recipe, was made from cornmeal mush served with butter and shaved maple sugar.

Y.W.C.A. ACTIVITIES

An "open house" will be held at the Y.W.C.A. on Sept. 20 from 8 p.m., when hostesses will be present to greet guests, members and prospective members of the many "Y" clubs.

There will be a program including a display of "Y" activities, square dancing, movies, music and refreshments. Ida Bianco, well-known C.J.V.I. "Womens' Page" editor, and president of the Victoria Women's Press Club, will be guest commentator.

Registrations will be taken that night for clubs and other interest groups, or at any other time by visit or phone to the program department.

Clubs include those for badminton, handicrafts, a new musical feature group, an "afternoon out" club, square dancing, the Junior Y Teen Club, Chatelaine Club and Overseas Wives Club and a glee club.

Further information may be had from Miss Eleanor Turvey, program director or Miss Kay Burt-Smith, G-7173.

Notice To Contractors

Sealed tenders will be received up to noon, September 28th, 1950, by the undersigned for alterations to the Office Building at Langford, B.C.

Plans and specifications may be obtained from the District Forester, Vancouver, the Forest Ranger at Langford or the undersigned upon a deposit of $5.00, refundable upon return of plans and specifications in good condition within 30 days of the date of opening of tenders.

Tenders will not be considered unless made out on the form supplied and signed, and a deposit of 10% of the tender is enclosed. Cheques of the unsuccessful tenderers will be returned when the contract is awarded.

Tenders must be submitted in the envelope marked "Tender for alterations to Ranger Station Building at Langford, B.C."

C. D. ORCHARD,
Chief Forester and Deputy Minister of Forests.

DISTRICT OF OAK BAY

Municipal Voters' List

Householders and licence holders who wish to have their names entered on the Oak Bay Municipal Voters' List for 1950-51 must file the necessary declaration with the Municipal Clerk not later than October 31st.

Householders and licence holders who filed declarations last year and who have paid the current year's Road Tax and Licences will automatically be placed on the Voters' List.

A. D. FINDLAY,
Municipal Clerk.

Metropolitan To Have Two Guest
Preachers Sunday

Metropolitan United Church will have two guest preachers on Sunday in the absence of Dr. Whitehouse, who is at General Council in Toronto. At the morning service, Rev. Douglas B. Carr will be the preacher and will take for his sermon subject "If We Forget God."

The choir will render the anthem, "Fight the Good Fight" (Rhodes). Miss Louise Martin will be the soloist, singing "The Penitent."

Dr. W. W. McPherson will be the preacher at the evening service, taking for his sermon subject "The Wisdom of History." The choir will be heard in the anthem, "Just As I Am" (Bowles). Miss Louise Martin will be the soloist, singing "Love Never Fails" (Root).

A brief organ recital will be heard from 7.15 to 7.30 p.m.

Straith May Go To Defence Talks

Provincial Secretary and Education Minister Straith probably will represent B.C. at a conference in Helena, Mont., Sept. 21, on joint civil-defence plans for the western provinces and states.

The conference has been called by Governor John Bonner of Montana and invitations have been sent to the premiers of the three western provinces of Canada, as well as governors of six western states and Alaska and U.S. Sixth Army officials.

Premier Byron Johnson and Mr. Straith are planning to attend a conference at Quebec at the time of the Montana meeting, but Mr. Straith, who heads the provincial civilian defence committee, may fly to Helena and then continue to eastern Canada.

If he is unable to attend, another cabinet minister will take his place.

May Have Funds
To Restore Dikes

A delegation from the Fraser Valley Diking Committee learned from the provincial cabinet Friday the Fraser Valley Diking Commission may have sufficient funds to strengthen weak spots which showed in the dikes when the river ran high this spring.

The government said, in answer to a request that more work be done on the dikes, that the levees had been turned over to the districts and the responsibility was there, but the commission still might have unexpended funds.

In addition to strengthening the weak spots, the delegation asked that some of the dikes of the system be completed to specification.

OFFERS

enclosed in envelopes marked "Offer for Blade" will be received by the undersigned up to noon, September 28th, 1950, for a land clearing blade built for a D-4 Caterpillar Tractor, "as is and where is," located at the rear of the Courtenay Machine Shop, Courtenay, where it may be inspected.

The highest or any offer not necessarily accepted.

TENDERS

PROTECTION WORK—JOHNSON STREET BRIDGE

Sealed tenders will be received by the undersigned up until 5.00 p.m. D.S.T. on Thursday, September 21st, 1950, for replacement of pier protection work at Johnson Street Bridge in Victoria, B.C.

The work consists of pile driving, removal of damaged timber wallings and replacements to form a complete protection screen for the East and West piers of the main span of the bridge.

Plans, specifications, General Conditions of Contract, Schedule of Approximate Quantities Forms of Tender and Contract may be seen at the office of the City Engineer in the City Hall, Victoria, B.C., and one copy thereof may be obtained on payment of the sum of $15.00, which sum will be refunded on return of these documents in good order.

Each tender must be accompanied by a certified deposit cheque equal to 5% of the amount of tender made payable to the City Treasurer and envelope containing tender must be marked "Tender for Replacement of Pier Protection Work at Johnson St. Bridge."

The successful tenderer will be required to enter into a Bond for a sum equal to 90% of the contract price, in form approved by the City Solicitor, for the due and proper performance of the contract.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

EMINENCE FOR BERGEN DUMMY

CALGARY (CP)—Charlie McCarthy, dummy of radio comedian Edgar Bergen, is more of a living personality to millions today than was the Divine Founder of the Christian way of life, Premier E. C. Manning told delegates to the association of Canadian Clubs Dominion convention here.

"While we profess to be a Christian nation," the provincial premier stated, "our Christianity is not a living reality influencing every judgment and decision we make."

Chooses Victoria
For Retirement

Wesley McCurdy, former publisher of the Winnipeg Tribune, will leave the Manitoba capital to live in Victoria.

Following his resignation as honorary treasurer of the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce, a presentation was made to Mr. McCurdy by the members.

The presentation was made at a luncheon given by the Winnipeg Chamber for Canadian Chamber delegates from eastern Canada, in recognition of his work with the Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in Winnipeg since 1918.

Charged with driving a car while his license was under suspension, Earle Cooper, Hillside Avenue, was fined $40 by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court Friday.

Portland Churchman
To Lecture Here

Just what is meant by spiritual law and just how it operates for the benefit of individual health and happiness will be the topic of a lecture at the Odeon Theatre at 3 Sunday afternoon, sponsored by First Church of Christ Scientist.

Paul Stark Seely of Portland, Ore., for many years a lecturer on Christian Science, will be the speaker. His subject is, "Christian Science: The Revelation of Spiritual Law."

Artificial Ice

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Seven miles of pipe are being laid in Minto Arena for the artificial ice plant.

Another Falls Stunt

TORONTO (CP)—Major Hill, Niagara Falls, Ont., riverman, said today he will make his next attempt to navigate the falls in a barrel about the first week in October. Major—his Christian name, not a military title—said business commitments will prevent him from making the attempt as originally scheduled Sept. 11.

OFFERS

"Offer for Wood," will be received by the undersigned up to noon, September 28th, 1950, for approximately 60 cords of fir cordwood, 4-foot lengths, located on what was formerly known as the Austin Farm, near the Third Trestle, Colquitz. Wood to be removed from site by Oct. 14th, 1950.

Further information may be obtained from the Deputy Business Manager, Provincial Mental Home, Colquitz.

What Is Wrong With This Picture?

WHEN one of our staff artists returned from his summer vacation, he brought back a portfolio of sketches with him. This is one of them, made in his suburban back yard, when the summer gardening was at its height.

Either our artist dozed off while he was making this drawing, or the heat affected his eyesight, for there are a great many irregularities in his picture. See if you can find at least 10 errors.

Answers: 1. The man is wearing a top hat, not a bowler hat. 2. The man is wearing a suit, not a tuxedo. 3. The man is holding a cane, not a stick. 4. The man is standing in a garden, not a field. 5. The man is looking at a structure, not a machine. 6. The structure has a chimney, not a smokestack. 7. The structure has windows, not doors. 8. The structure has a roof, not a top. 9. The structure has a base, not a foundation. 10. The structure has a spire, not a tower.

IT'S A RACE you for twice the length of the pool," shouted Sandy.

Cliff started simultaneously. They met at the east end and Sandy from the west end. They met each other the first time 20 feet from the last end, and the second time 18 feet from the west end.

Who won the race, Cliff or Sandy?

Another major expense in prairie football was traveling. The Roughriders' week-end tour of Calgary and Edmonton cost $2,500, and the club made two such trips a season.

At the height of the season, the yard employs 14 men, most of them fully skilled boatbuilders.

RD and fog of the islands are believed one of the main reasons. Early each spring they start the migration

Most of the Vogler boats are built of Red Cedar timbered on the island, but the hard woods such as oak come from eastern Canada and the States, and of course the mahogany comes from Asia.

One Vogler boat is anchored at Honolulu; another is at Phoenix Arizona and there are two on the big Roosevelt Dam.

A comparatively recent development in the Vogler business is in outboard speedsters. These are 12-footers with 22 horse power outboards attached they are reckoned to do 40 miles per hour. The boats are 12 feet long, made of plywood and weigh about 125 pounds. Vogler piloted one of his own

Costs $7 A Minute To Say Nothing On This Line

By PAUL GALLICO

PARIS—Strange and wonderful the things that happen to a man in the throes of making a transatlantic telephone call from Europe to the folks back home.

It is now more than a decade since this service was instituted, but the American has not got used to it yet. He believes that "Darling," who is the party most often to be found at the other end of the line, will only be able to hear him if he yells his head off and he apparently operates on the theory that if the gadget does not succeed in carrying his voice he will take no chances and bellow loud enough to be heard without a radio-telephone.

This of course defeats its own purpose, because the louder he hollers, the more it blasts back and the less "Darling" or "Mama" on the other end can hear. But since she is likewise screaming into the instrument at the top of her lungs, it really makes no difference anyway, and particularly in view of the fact that neither of them has anything really important to say to one another.

MIND GOES BLANK

But let us be the price that has something to do with it, because when I am home where I subscribe and get on the line for four cents or whatever it costs, I can call a guy up and in a minute and a half tell him the plot of a story I want to sell, invite him out to lunch, pass along the one I heard the other day about two traveling salesmen and inquire after the wife and kiddies.

But let me just have that seven cents a minute running against me and it takes me four minutes to work up to a simple declarative sentence. Thanks to the thin walls of a hotel, the other day I was able to hear the conversation of one of the victims of transatlantic telephoning.

It was a conversation between a man and a woman. The man was saying to the woman: "Hoy, I want a drink, not a shower."

Frenchman Gave Seeds And Livestock To Easter Island

By UNCLE RAY

THIS is the story of a Frenchman with a kind heart. He was Count Jean de La Perouse, and he was told about an island in the Pacific Ocean where the natives had only a few kinds of food. That was Easter Island, which lies far to the south of the equator.

The count said to himself: "What a fine thing it would be if the seeds of many plants could be taken there! Then the natives would have a better food supply." Not long after that, La Perouse was chosen to lead a voyage of discovery for the French government. On an August day in the year 1785, he left France with two vessels under his command. Re- membering Easter Island, he took many kinds of seeds along with him.

Easter Island was only one of several places which were reached, but the visit there was highly important. Wasting no time, the leader sent men far and wide over the island with orders to sow the seeds.

Corn, beans, cabbages and carrots were planted, also the seeds of orange and lemon trees. The natives seemed to be glad to have the strangers do this for them, and pointed out places where the soil was rich. They also were delighted with gifts of sheep, goats and pigs, large flocks or herds in years to come.

La Perouse was interested in the so-called rongorongo men of Easter Island have tried to explain "what the wood says," but they have failed to give clear knowledge of each sign or picture word. We may figure that there were people who could read it long ago, but if so, the knowledge was lost with the passing of time.

General meaning may have been saved in words which were repeated from father to son, but it appears that none of the natives of the present time know how to write such words. Interestingly enough, pieces of ancient writing very much like that of Easter Island were found some years ago in the Indus Valley of India. Those pieces of writing were believed to date back at least 4,000 years, but their meaning is not known clearly.

There's Everything But Water At Busy Victoria Boat Yard

'Bluenose' Founder Builds 400 Boats In Six Years

By HARRY YOUNG

A FIRM that started from scratch six years ago and since then built over 400 boats, provides a splendid example of the type of industry Victoria can support.

Behind this business is Doug Vogler, a former Vancouver shipyard worker. At the end of the war Vogler foresaw a growing popularity for sport fishing in British Columbia's prolific sheltered waterways, and a consequent demand for a modern type of craft to suit the angler.

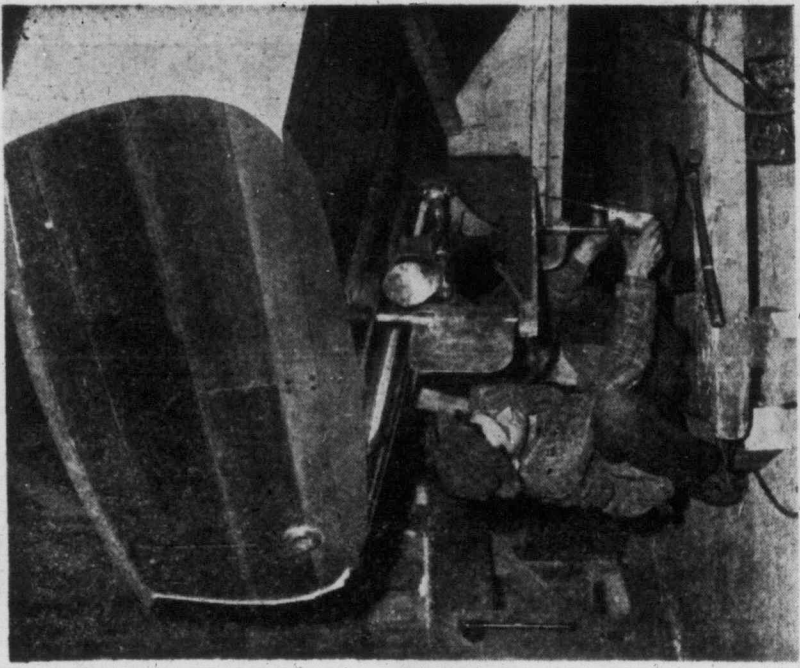

Dedicated to go into the specialized business of building sport-fishing craft, Vogler chose Victoria as a suitable place to commence operations. His first boatyard was on Johnson Street, but soon he had to move out to more spacious premises on Douglas Street, just past the Burnside Road junction.

People who spot the sign "Vogler's Seacraft" begin looking around for water, and of course they don't find it. But there's nothing silly about having a boatyard away from the water.

"Matter of economics," explains Vogler. "Most of the boats I build are taken away on trucks anyway, and a site up here is much less expensive than one on the waterfront."

So when you get over this surprise and step down from the Vogler office into the covered boatyard below the road level, you come across a scene of activity that would make any small boat enthusiast green with envy.

In the Vogler yard, you will find boats of all varieties from 26 feet to 8½ feet in various stages of construction. From the laying of the keel to the application of the last coat of varnish, the whole job is completed in the shipyard.

In all Vogler has 12 stock designs, ranging from large sport-fishing cruiser to the dinghy that may go with it.

NO TIME WASTED

Wages in the boatbuilding industry go up to $1.50 an hour, so there is no time to be wasted if the boat is going to be able to sell his craft competitively.

Vogler pointed out that he reckoned a 10-foot dinghy to his standard specification should be built in 48 man hours. The cost of such a boat is $160, which means that after the timber, the paint and the fittings are bought there is not such a big profit left over for the builder. However, Vogler keeps building these small craft just to keep his men busy between other jobs.

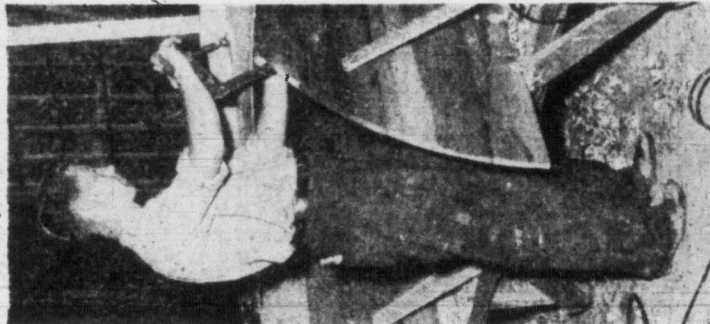

One of the most popular of the Vogler designs is the 18-foot sport-fishing craft with the glass-encircled cabin that may be seen at most anywhere British Columbia fishing men gather.

"The owners decide what sort of engine they want installed," said Vogler, showing me one of the nearly completed boats lying in its cradle.

"I recommended a 45 h.p. job for this craft, and then I can guarantee a speed of about 25 miles per hour, but the customers often have their own ideas. Some want more speed and they overpower their boats, and others want a more economical and less highly powered engine. I don't always agree with their choice, but then everyone has his own ideas."

Vogler prides himself on turning out a good sturdy seaworthy craft. He does not believe in using flimsy materials.

3 Rules To Keep Hubby Interested

By RUTH MILLETT

IN ALL the advice offered women on how to keep men interested in them through the years the three most important rules are usually overlooked. Maybe it's because they aren't easy rules to follow. Nevertheless they are the rules that really pay off.

The first is: Develop an independence of spirit so that your man knows that you aren't completely dependent on him. That, if necessary, you could stand on your own two feet.

A man soon grows weary of the woman who is a clinging vine. It's a bigger load than any human being likes to carry.

The second is: Realize that you must create your own happiness. The woman who expects a man to devote his life to making her happy, or whose moods are nothing more than a reflection of his moods, is never going to be a happy person.

And no man is comfortable around an unhappy woman—even if she never complains.

The third is: Don't settle down into a rut. Keep changing. Keep learning. Keep getting new ideas. Keep developing new interests. When a man comes home and asks "What's new?" have something to tell him. Answer "Nothing much" too many times—and he'll not only quit asking but quit wondering what you are doing with your time.

These aren't easy rules to follow, because they all require not only that you "do something" but that you "be something."

Yet you can't really expect to be interesting to anyone—even to those you love—unless you are somebody in your own right—a person who is independent of doing things instead of expecting happiness to be handed over by someone else, and who keeps moving ahead instead of settling down in a comfortable rut.

LOW HEELS NEEDED

Girls and women should wear distinctive "work shoes" and "play shoes." For standing all day the feet need firm, comfortable support and a low heel, otherwise the balance of the whole body is upset and backache may result. High-heeled shoes should be saved for evening wear.

SUN, FRUIT ANTIDOTES FOR OILY SKINS

ENLARGED pores present a beauty problem that must be solved both by skin care and by diet. Actually, they are dilated openings of the oil glands. When the oil glands are blocked, the secretion can't escape and the oily material hardens.

Oily skin and enlarged pores usually go together. So give your skin special care as to cleanliness. Doctors recommend cutting out rich or highly seasoned foods. Be sure to drink eight glasses of water a day, eat green, leafy vegetables and fresh fruit. Get as much sunshine each day as you can.

Though coats may go to any length this fall, here are three lengths most stressed. The three-quarter coat (left) in russet copper trimmed with four polished brass buttons, the short coat (center) in cabin brown chinchilla, and full-length coat in alpaca gold (right).

Coat Lengths Your Choice This Fall

By GAIL DUGAS

THE LENGTH of a coat is a matter of personal choice this autumn. But the straighter three-quarter length, the shorter coat in the pyramid coat with easy lines all are important.

The reason that the three-quarter coat has importance this season is that it looks straight and narrow. The fullness of other years is gone. The back may be very simply straight or it may conceivably have a low half-belt. Either way, the look is new.

One such well-tailored coat in rustic copper bolivia cloth borders highlights from the gleam of four big hand-polished brass buttons. A small shawl collar and four widely-spaced pocket flaps provide added interest.

A short coat in pyramid silhouette is given side fullness and deep armholes with the thought that, thus designed, it will go neatly over a suit. Tailored in cabin brown chinchilla, it's meant to provide contrast to the sleek lines of a narrow skirt.

The woman who will buy just one new coat this fall might do well to think about the full-length coat with soft, flowing lines. One coat in alpaca gold bolivia cloth has rounded domed sleeves which make it really wearable over suits and jackets. Buttons up much room collar provides a flattering frame for a pretty face. This is the coat which more than any other, will "go everywhere."

Cleaners Discover That Women Rank High As Forgetful Customers

By ANNE LARSEN

A DRY cleaner's most memorable moments derive from his customers' forgetfulness, according to Richard Manoff, manager of the largest cleaning firm in the world.

Lurking behind the business front of this work-a-day establishment are pathos, humor, drama and a bit of cloak-and-dagger stuff, all growing out of the things—both precious and dangerous—that customers leave in their clothes.

Since 85 per cent of his customers are women, it is the fair sex that is responsible on many occasions for situations that arise. Such was the case when an anxious feminine voice on the telephone threw some dozens of the firm's employees into a frantic search for forgotten jewelry that had been secreted in a hidden pocket in her coat.

The garment of ordinary cut and fabric was located before it reached the cleaning vats, but a thorough going-over revealed no priceless gems. Disbelief of the cleaners was shattered only when the former arrived to manipulate the false seams and double linings that concealed her belongings.

No Ma! Ma! she exclaimed that she had devised the pocket as a portable safe for her valuables, since she lived alone in a hotel.

SAVED IN TIME

On another occasion, husband and wife shared the responsibility for a slip-of-the-memory that almost cost them their hope of a fresh start in a new country.

the flap with interest. Her curiosity was replaced by surprise and anger when several pictures of a stunningly beautiful woman dropped into her palm.

NEARLY WRECKED MARRIAGE

The Johnson marriage hung in the balance until, with the help of the cleaners, she discovered the pictures belonged to another customer, a Miss Johnson, who had been correspondingly perturbed about losing portraits she used in her profession as a model.

In the 160 stores that comprise the chain, an estimated total of $40,000 worth of forgotten articles is caught by checkers each year. These include such items as love letters, false teeth, wallets, empty matchboxes, silver-plated lighters, ticket stubs, gold compacts or five-cent handkerchiefs.

About $2,000 worth of pure scrap—largely paper—is recovered each year. A wastebasket three feet high is filled daily with junk someone failed to clear from pockets. Checking of clothes is done not only for the benefit of the customer but for the protection of the cleaner as well.

One forgotten lipstick, dissolved in a vat of fluid, can smear as many as 200 garments. Children's crayons wreak similar damage. Chewing gum, though messy, is slightly less costly. It melts into a sticky mass rather than dissolving, ruining as a rule only the pocket in which it was left.

As Pennant Hopes Rise Whiz-Kids Win New Fans

By HARVEY GRAYSON

THE RISE of the Philadelphia Phillies from the perpetual gloom of last place to the exciting position of a pennant contender is a story backed by fortunes gambled on untired players.

It is told finally, and the wisdom of the spending revealed, in the presence of the Whiz Kids wearing the peppermint-candy striped uniform of a club that has captured the imagination and support of Philadelphia and been adopted by fans throughout the nation who have never seen them.

All of the Whiz Kids are not glittering bonus babies.

Del Emis, for example, cost exactly 7½ cents, or the streetcar token it took Scout Jocko Collins to get to his Philadelphia home.

Mike Goliat walked into the Vandergrift, Pa., Class C club's camp and signed for $125 a month. He decided second basing was much better than digging bituminous coal.

Of the four remarkable young pitchers, Curt Simmons alone was handed a million-dollar sum for his signature—$65,000. Robin Roberts collected a substantial $25,000, but Bob Miller came at $3,500, Bubba Church at $3,000.

"The Whiz Kids started to assemble in the chain stores in 1945, when the tow-headed, twinkled-toed Richie Ashburn was chasing the outfield for Utica and one of his teammates was Putsy Caballero.

Richie Ashburn Willie Jones

Emis, who broke in with Trenton of the Inter-State League in '43 and went into the service, came out of it in '46, joined the Phillies and became the "National League Rookie-of-the-Year." Stan Lopata, a 20-year-old Detroit high school and American League development player, was traded for Terre Haute, where Ralph Caballero played third base.

RICH IN TALENT In the summer of '47, America experienced one of the greatest crops in its agricultural history. Not behind the times, the Phillies' farm system was rich in "talent" ready, or almost ready, to be harvested.

Granny Hamner and Caballero had their first professional trials with the Phillies in '44, when they reported off the high school diamonds of Richmond, Va., and New Orleans at the ages of 17 and 16, respectively. Now they were the second base combination for Utica and coming as fast as a prairie wind. Puddin'head Willie Jones was getting in his first professional ticks with Terre Haute. Goliat had asked for the chance and got it at Vandergrift.

Simmons, fresh out of high school, was winning 13 of 18 and fanning 197 men for Wilmington, Del., of the Class B Inter-State League. Emory Church was pitching for Salina, Kans., in the Western Association.

As Robin Roberts left Michigan State to throw his fireball for Wilmington in '48, Bob Miller departed Detroit University to look remarkably like a young Dizzy Dean with Terre Haute. Also with Wilmington was Stan Holmgren.

LOWER YOUR GOLF HANDICAP

Don't Ask Club To Do Too Much

By GENE SARAZEN
Winner of Them All

THERE would be a much larger percentage of confident iron players if golfers today weren't so hungry for distance at the wrong time.

A golfer gains nothing by trying to reach a green with an eight iron from 165 yards out when the five iron is the proper club—nothing but vain satisfaction of telling the boys about the tremendous distance he gets.

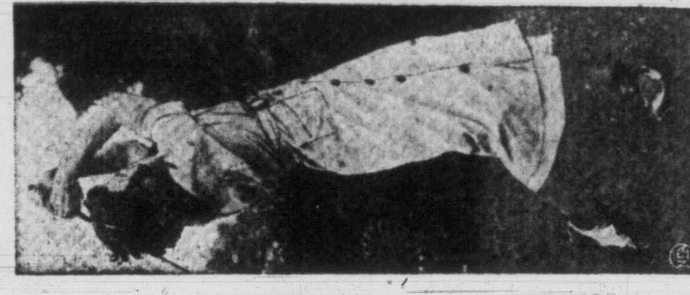

He doesn't add that the ball rolled half the distance. He never narrates the gloomy tale of what happens 24 out of 25 times when he tries to impress himself with his own strength.

You never hear of the wide hook. The fast slice, the look-up, the fluff.

When Babe Didrikson Zaharias was first turning to golf, her desire to be a sensation long hindered her development.

She would close the face of the seven iron, toe it in and belly the ball 170 yards.

When Babe stopped kidding herself, began playing a seven like a seven and not like a two, she started to develop a grooved swing and a glorious golf game.

EARLY DISTANCE—When Babe Didrikson Zaharias first turned to golf, above, her desire to be a sensation long hindered her development.

Learn To Take Correct Stance On Baseball Field

By ACE PERCIVAL

ONE of the great faults of all athletes in overlooking the so-called simple fundamentals of a good technique. This is especially true of baseball fielders. For example, if you watch practically any ball game you will probably find only one fielder in 50 who regularly assumes a correct ready-for-action stance.

Most players seem to forget the great importance of faking up the correct stance before each play. As a result most of them are off balance or in a position from which they can't start as quickly as they should. If you watch major-league baseball you will note that all the top players pay very careful attention to their stance.

After all, your stance, is the start of any move you make. If it is not correct the odds are against you performing the rest of the needed action as efficiently as possible. Psychology also teaches that when a person takes up the proper stance he is concentrating and his attention will be better, he will be

Rule Of Thumb Does Not Always Work

By OSWALD JACOBY

EVERY bridge player learns certain rules of defence almost as soon as he takes up the game. For example, you are told to lead through strength and up to weakness.

This is a very sound rule most of the time. If the dummy is on your right, it is usually wise for you to lead a suit in which dummy is weak. If your partner has high cards in the suit, he has a chance to play after declarer without the risk of being topped by the dummy.

If the dummy is on your left, it is usually wise to lead through a suit in which there is broken strength. In this case, your hope is that your partner has the missing high cards and will win whatever finesse is taken.

Although this is a perfectly good rule of thumb, it should not be followed blindly in every hand. The expert considers every hand as an individual case, and does not allow himself to be misled by a general rule. The importance of disregarding the rule is shown in today's hand.

West opened the four of diamonds and East won with the ace. When the king dropped from the South hand, East indulged in a little thought. It seemed clear to him that declarer would eventually discard most of his losing cards on dummy's clubs. It was therefore necessary to make sure of four defensive tricks before declarer could draw trumps and run the clubs.

East could count on winning only one diamond. If he won only one spade trick, it would be necessary for his partner to contribute two tricks in hearts and clubs. In view of the fact that South had made an opening bid and a free rebid, it was virtually impossible for West to have the necessary high cards in hearts and clubs.

East realized that he could expect no more from his partner than one trick. It was therefore necessary to find the setting tricks in spades.

On the basis of this reasoning, East returned the deuce of spades at the second trick. South played low. West played the queen, and dummy won with the king.

This unusual play, violating the general rule of defensive play, paved the way for the defeat of the contract. Declarer properly took the trump finesse, losing to West's king. West then returned a spade through dummy's jack, allowing East to take two tricks with the ace and the ten.

If East had taken only one spade trick at trick two, South would have made his contract. He would have had a club with a club to ruff, enter dummy with a club to take the trump finesse, and then guess the spades correctly. The opponents would have no time to set up a second spade trick, and South would have lost only one spade, one heart and one diamond.

Britain And Argentina Wage Philatelic War Over Falkland Islands

Falkland Islands dispute make them the most interesting of these philatelic issues.

First we have the Falklands centenary series of 1933—one of the most beautiful commemorative sets ever issued—and incidentally, one of the most valuable. It is pretty obvious that these stamps were to a certain extent intended to remind Argentina and the world at large that the islands had been under British rule for a full 100 years.

About that corsage of fresh flowers and how to keep it fresh for a protracted period. Wrap a little wet cotton around the stems, then wind with transparent tape. Put ribbon on top of this if desired, but we have found that the dark green gift wrap tape looks nice as well as holding in the moisture.

For quick going-over on painted or enameled furniture use mild soda with a few drops of ammonia added to the water. Sponge over the furniture, rinse, and dry immediately with a soft cloth.

To parents who are worried about their infant's tendency to chew on wooden toys, we suggest that they do as is done in professional nurseries. All playthings get several thin coats of white shellac, which gives a smooth surface and makes it almost impossible for the child to get splinters. Easier to clean and to keep clean, too.

Charles Dickens Biography Should Not Be Missed

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

CHARLES DICKENS was a born actor, who if he were alive today would be the king of film writers with Hollywood at his feet. . . . Thus does Hesketh Pearson assess the famous Victorian novelist in his sparkling, informative biography of Dickens, "His Character, His Comedy, His Tragedy," published by Methuen.

No run-of-the-mill biographer, Mr. Pearson draws as full and finely-etched study of Dickens as he did of those two other literary figures in his excellent biographies of George Bernard Shaw and Oscar Wilde. There is no waiting for the book to get interesting. From the outset the author takes us back to Victorian days, and to a London immortalized by Dickens.

"Dickens was London," according to Pearson. "He identified himself with the city in such a way that he became a part of its brick and mortar."

Relation-idden, restless, not too happily married, plagued by publishers and literary pirates, Dickens nevertheless managed to live a full and reasonably exciting life. Whether it was his frightening experience in the blacking factory, as a child, his unrequited love affair, his tours through the courts, or work as a political reporter, the event provided him with color and character composites for his novels.

"The born actor," writes Pearson, "Dickens was such, 'is a man who has all the human sensibilities in an exaggerated form and is tortured with the desire to exhibit them; he laughs more heartily, weeps more tearfully, reacts more quickly than other people to all forms of stimuli.'"

"Fortunately people never see the idiotic side of this," he adds, "agreeing with H. G. Wells that 'every living character in a novel is drawn frankly or furtively from life.'"

For deeply satisfying reading come the crisp, full evenings Mr. Pearson's biography of Dickens will be tops on the list.

Prairie River Takes A Lot Of Knowing

"The Saskatchewan," by Marjorie Wilkins Campbell, (Clarke, Irwin). The Saskatchewan is a river that takes a lot of knowing. Many Canadians are acquainted with a small segment of its geography. But the few who have viewed the entire length of its north and south branches will have much to learn from Marjorie Wilkins Campbell's "The Saskatchewan," published as the first volume of the "Rivers of America."

Mrs. Campbell lives in Toronto and grew up in the Qu'Appelle Valley in Saskatchewan. She gives a nostalgic description of the "wobbly Y" that flows from the Rockies to Hudson Bay. Her exhibiting portrait, however, is only the first chapter of the book.

The rest may be described as history—but it is more vivid and more exhaustive than the mere chronicle of the travellers on the bucked river's current on the westward journey or braved its treacherous sandbars in coasting eastward. It tells of the manifold growth of the vast stretches of territory for which the Saskatchewan remains, in a sense, the main highway.

The canoes of the Indians and fur traders no longer ply the river's partly-colored waters. A brief, colorful and unsuccessful effort to conquer it with paddle-wheeled steamers ended 40 years ago, and the wrecks of the steamers have washed away.

"The Saskatchewan," aptly illustrated with line drawings by Irving H. Kerr of Calgary, is the third volume dealing with a Canadian river in the "Rivers of America" series. Henry Beston's "St. Lawrence," and Leslie Roberts "MacKenzie" were published earlier.

Nun Emerges Finds Life Difficult

"I Leap Over the Wall," by Monica Baldwin. (Hapish Hamilton)

With a sound sense of news values and an attempt to give a fair and factual account of her years as a nun in an English cloistered order for 28 years, Monica Baldwin, a niece of Stanley Baldwin, has written the story of her life.

She entered the convent in 1914 as a girl of 21 and emerged 28 years later in the midst of another world war, having been given special dispensation from Rome when she realized she was not fitted for the life of a nun.

She writes at length of her entry into a war-torn world of styles, headlines, moods and customs . . . of her efforts to reorient herself with the outside world. At the same time, through a flashback method, she provides her readers with a view of life behind the convent walls, where women with a true vocation devote their lives to God.

She mingled with scientists, attempted work on a farm, stood in labor queues and fought boys in factories—all of which she was as unsuited for, as she had appeared to be for the convent. Only toward the close of the book does she reveal attaining a measure of content and a spot in the world she re-entered.

However, when an individual takes some extraordinary action and outlines it in minute detail, withholding all the while, the reason behind the move, it is irritating in the extreme.

That simple fact is one of the chief criticisms of Miss Baldwin's admittedly unusual story. It is not until she comes to page 292, in a "which now brings us at last to a subject which I now confess I have been carefully avoiding since I started to write this book."

The reader will be hard put to accept her reasons for waiting until the last to provide the simple and honest explanation. A mere attraction for the contemplative life of a nun in a cloistered convent is not sufficient. A sincere conviction that it is the will of God for the individual concerned must be the chief motive. Miss Baldwin admits such was not the case with her.

The title of the book, also might come under fire, although the author fully explains it is an old family motto and there was no necessity to "leap over the wall." She merely walked out through an open door.

Apart from these criticisms, Miss Baldwin's book is written in vivid, thoughtful and frequently amusing style and with an honest endeavor to dispel many of the old notions which are frequently held by persons to whom the very idea of a convent is foreign and strange.

Ways To Get Rid Of Quack Grass Pest

By CECIL SOLLTY

PROBABLY the worst pest in this district is that tough wild grass called "quack" grass. It has become a trial and tribulation to many farmers and home gardeners too, whether they have a city lot or a "place in the country."

There has been much misleading information about quack grass offered to small gardeners, especially those who desire to plant a lawn, shrubs, flower garden or vegetables. The unhappy experience of many has brought letters asking for correct information on how to get rid of this pest.

It is possible to eliminate entirely, but, believe me, there is no easy way.

Quack Grass is a variety of grass listed in the garden books as TRITICUM REPENS. It is often rightly called Couch Grass. In form, it is much like Rye Grass, but with brittle, heavy strong underground roots, which make it possible for it to stand almost any amount of dry weather. Many people confuse Quack with Crab Grass, which is such a pest in lawns in the East, but practically unknown here. There are several cures for Crab Grass which won't work on the Quack type.

Briefly, the system is to spray the weeds and grass while they are in active growth. With Quack Grass it is generally necessary to soak the material on the leaves and down to the roots too. Then only is a complete kill soon accomplished.

When this system is used, it must be remembered that there will be a plant-killing residue in the soil which will be potent for two or three months afterwards. Therefore, a reasonable rest must be given the soil before it will be capable of sustaining the growth of any plants afterwards.

QUACK GRASS ELIMINATION

As stated previously, there is no easy way to get rid of it, but everyone knows that once it is cleaned out of any area, the remaining soil is generally very good earth.

One sure way is quite a lot of hard work, but really satisfactory, is to strip off about six inches of the Quack Grass turf. It may be cut out with a spade and wheelbarrow to a heap or compost pile. If the turves are laid face down with the grass inside, a heap may be built in a vacant spot.

Composting material may be added to the pile. There are several materials put up by reliable firms. If you follow the directions, the grass will rot down quite readily. After it has all decomposed, the resultant loam may be used in the garden with excellent results.

Double-trenching is described in most good garden books. This too requires a lot of "spade-work," but the result is sure. Briefly, what happens is that the top "spit" is trenched, face down, in a shallow trench, and then covered to the original soil level with earth from the next trench which is made two spits or spades' depth, for the second strip. When quack grass and its roots are buried face down under about six inches of soil, the grass totally decomposes and makes a garden of rich deep earth.

There are several strawberry farmers in this vicinity who are using Ducks and Geese to success-

2,4-D WON'T WORK

The "hormone" spray materials which are used to kill weeds in a lawn (2,4-D) or to kill wild quack grass (2,4,5-T) will not kill quack grass unless they are used at such a strength as to make the soil unusable for a long time, so these are not advised.

There is one material, recently introduced, called I.P.C., which is now being tested in many parts of the country, including this area. Sufficient reports of these trials have not yet come in. In any event, although it seems to me to be the right idea, the use of I.P.C. is still in the experimental stage. If you want to try it out, it can be purchased at some of the seed and farm stores.

One method used here is to cover the quack grass area with a suitable material. In every instance when this treatment is used, the grass must be cut down close first. Then a covering material is set in place and held down by rocks.

Strips of tarpaper or old roofing material are quite in order. Some who wish to avoid cost, cut up old cardboard cartons. If these are thoroughly soaked after being put in place, they work fine.

In a small area several years ago, I saw rhubarb leaves used with excellent results. I believe the acid in the leaves was a contributing factor.

Kale is one of the greens which should appear in every vegetable garden. It will provide the table with greens throughout the winter months.

Tasks To Be Tackled In Garden During September

By V. W. AHMER

Dig potatoes on a dry day and separate the damaged and small tubers. These may be used first, and the balance stored in a cool place. Clean up the vacant ground, add the haulms and other refuse to the compost heap, and sow fall rye.

Pick squashes and cucumbers as soon as ready for the table. This will keep the vines producing for some time. Save the mature squash for winter storage, using the smaller ones which may not ripen before frost.

To prevent ball-headed cabbage from splitting, pull each plant out enough to break a few roots. This will retard the growth but still supply enough food to sustain the plant. Clean up the rows of winter vegetables, give a final thinning and draw the earth around the crows.

There is yet time to plant beets, carrots, spinach, turnips, for a late fall supply. Transplant lettuce now. If the onions and shallots which have been dug are not drying satisfactorily, it would be wise to dry them.

rototiller is the best machine, better than a plow or disc for working the soil properly.

Don't plant a lawn or garden until the quack grass is all removed. Even if you have to delay planting, it is sage advice that you should never start any planting until all the quack grass is out.

This is especially true of a lawn, where one wishes to have a perfect green carpet of turf as a beautification of the home. If quack grass is not all eliminated before a lawn is planted, there is no way of getting rid of it later, and there is nothing more unsightly than a lawn with quack grass showing up like weeds all through it.

LEFT BY PESTS

A flower which no insects bother is pyrethrum, a hardy perennial daisy. From plants of the same family one of the most effective insecticides is prepared. They grow from seed sown in August, flowering the following year and living many years, through the coldest winters.

DON'T ROTOTILLER

If you have an area of ground in which there is even only a small quantity of quack grass, don't have it rototilled with the hope of eliminating it. The rototiller does such a good job of mixing job that it takes thousands of little pieces, the result of which is a much heavier stand of "quack" than before.

It is absolutely necessary to get rid of all quack grass in the garden before the valuable soil conditioning job of a rototiller is put to use. After it is all gone, the

You Can Be Your Own Fire Fighter

By BOB SCHARFF

VERY few homes have fire extinguishers. Cost is one reason, but that is a poor reason. More important is the fact that few homeowners realize how valuable an extinguisher can be. In good condition, it can kill a fire provided (1) it is the proper type for that kind of fire and (2) it is operated properly.

What type of fire extinguisher is best? The answer depends entirely on what is burning. For purposes of identification think of fire as being of three main classes, A, B and C.

Class A—Fires in ordinary combustibles such as wood, paper or rubbish. Here the cooling effect of an extinguishing agent is most important and water is supreme.

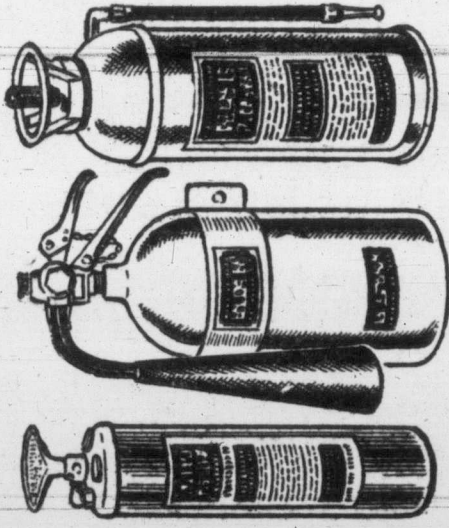

Class B—Fire in flammable liquids, such as gasoline, kerosene, oil, paint and grease. Here a smothering effect is needed to cut off oxygen.

Class C—Fires in live electrical equipment, calling for an extinguishing agent which is a non-conductor.

For home fire protection, authorities recommend at least one extinguisher of vaporizing liquid type and one of the soda acid type, a combination that will enable you to handle practically any beginning blaze that might occur in your home.

The vaporizing liquid type is the most familiar—the 1 or 1½ quart pump gun, loaded with a special solution of carbon tetrachloride. When the liquid strikes the flame, it becomes a heavy vapor which smothers the fire. This type of extinguisher is excellent for Class B or C fires and is effective on Class A's if they are not deep-seated.

The soda acid type is the one seen in most public buildings—a 2½-gallon tank with a short hose on the side. A water extinguisher, with bicarbonate of soda added, it contains a bottle of sulphuric acid. Variations of this type contain cartridges of compressed gas and when used it must be inverted and banged sharply on the floor so a pin will puncture the cartridge, releasing the gas.

Decide which of these types of fire extinguishers is most practical for your needs, get one and practice using it.

Polygonum Grows From Pole To Pole

By ROBERT CONNELL

NOW THAT the sides of the roads are fast taking on their autumnal appearance the common weeds are very noticeable. But I was more struck the other day with the persistence of one that not only spreads over the hard footpaths but in this case was actually decorating the cement gutters as if the absence of soil meant nothing to it.

Of course the roots find cracks or even little pockets of nutritious matter to anchor themselves in. This particular plant is one of the group referred to last week, the knotweeds or polygonums and indeed is the typical and commonest one, although far from the largest or most spectacular.

It is found all over the globe from pole to pole according to Beatham and Hooker. Yet on the prairies it was not uncommonly known as "white man's footstep," a name that probably is due to its falling up of old associations in the minds of our pioneers. Of course it is a weed, long distant from their ancestral homes and this journey has been going on for long ever since flowering plants and spore-bearing ones existed.

BELONGS TO LILY FAMILY
A very interesting instance of plant distribution is found in small lakes. At least one occurs in Florence Lake. It is known botanically as Brassica schrebleri, the water shield, and belongs to the water-lily family. Its small leaves are oval and attached to the supporting stalk near their centre. A very curious feature of the plant is that the undersides of the leaves as well as the leaf stalks and main stem are thickly coated with a rather milky or opalescent jelly. The purpose of this coating is not known, so far as I am aware. The plant has a wide and curious distribution, and it may be not inappropiately described as a tropical plant and yet a native here.

It is found in lakes across this continent, in western tropical Africa, in eastern and tropical Asia, and in Australia. It is not found in Europe. It is sometimes put in artificial ponds with water-lilies because of its pretty little floating leaves. I mention it specially because it must have travelled in its racial history to be so widely distributed and under such diversity of conditions. Locally its seed might well be carried by birds but few birds seem to fulfill the conditions for such wide equatorial spread.

IS SWEET SHELLED
Bordering Florence Lake as other lakes is an evergreen bush remarkable for its thick, aromatic leaves. It generally grows about waist-high. It bears little catkins, one set with the stamens, the other the pistils, each kind on separate plants.

This shrub, known as sweet-gale, bog myrtle, wax myrtle, and bayberry, is found on both sides of our continent and in Europe and Asia, inhabiting lake borders, and boggy places, in the north and in the mountains.

It is common in the northern parts of the British Isles and is found occasionally in the south of England. Indeed it has been found in the north of Italy. Its distribution recalls the southern extent of our glacial ice-caps over our northern countries. There is something delightful about the scent of its leaves as you brush against them.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Victoria Moves Upward In Arts

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

WELL, September is here, and school is in and a new fall and winter season of activity will get under way in a matter of weeks. The growth—the upsurge in appreciation and participation in the artistic life of the city, which has been noticeable in the past few years, shows every sign of continuing at an even greater rate.

One of the most important new phases, from our point of view, is the addition of music to the credit courses already available at Victoria College. This, with the appointment of Hans Gruber to administer the course, should reap nothing but praise for the Greater Victoria School Board.

Music, heading for a career in music, will now be able to obtain a sound academic background without sacrificing progress in their chosen field.

FINE STANDARD SET

The now completely organized and financially successful Musical Festival Association, has a head start this season and a portion of the syllabus has already been published. The final edition will be available in music stores throughout the city very shortly.

Music selected by the committee maintains the fine standard set last spring. Big entries in choral classes should result from choices like "Be Not Afraid" from Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and Armstrong Gibbs' "Sea Song." Not only a joy to do, such numbers have within themselves, much to reveal in the art of singing.

The Tenth Anniversary season of the Victoria Symphony will be one of the major attractions on the musical calendar. More concerts and more guest artists—but probably most important, more rehearsals made possible through the new set-up—should further enhance the already high prestige of the orchestra.

PLAYERS ANALAGANATE

Amalgamation of two principal dramatic organizations, Victoria Players' Guild and Little Theatre Society, inevitably means a little in dramatic standard, as the best in both organizations will go into the production of seven or eight full-length plays, first of which is the tender, humorous life-drama, "I Remember Mama."

The Arts Centre promises a number of noteworthy exhibitions and also some unusual musical evenings. The first of these which will take place in October is a real head-liner, The Paganini Quartette. This is an aggregate of violins, viola and cello which has been described by the famous French periodical, "L'Illustration," as "Four virtuosi with one soul, imbued with the poetry of Mozart, the grandeur of Beethoven and the mysticism of Debussy."

We feel that due to space limitations, there were aspects of the Starlight Theatre productions that were rather neglected in reviews, though not intentionally or carelessly.

Particularly, the choruses of all local singers, the almost 100 per cent Victoria ballet and the orchestra drawn from the ranks of the Victoria Symphony. We would like to go on record as being thoroughly appreciative of the chorus.

work, which has improved vastly over the first season, both physically and vocally particularly in the male section.

The orchestra also, notably in "Blossom Time," played more effectively and cohesively than on previous occasions. As for the ballet, it heightened the enjoyment of even the most colorful and musically de-lighted scenes! What more can one say!

ELIOT CRITICISED

T. S. Eliot, the English-American poet who wrote one of today's great masterpieces of the stage, "Murder in the Cathedral," is again in the limelight with a brilliant modern piece called "The Cocktail Party." Among the most talked-about plays of the current season, it has taken New York critics by storm and has even been recorded on LP, almost in its entirety.

One English theatre-goer, however, writing to the Theatre Newsletter, expresses his disapproval in a scathing "Mr. Eliot" review. "It has a stilted, perfecting style of blank verse so close to colloquial speech that he can confidently defy anyone to find poetry in it at all. One can, of course, prove that the play is indeed in verse by looking at a printed copy and checking that the sentences are all on separate lines... It is a sad comment on the gullibility of our intelligentsia that this piece of life-hating Schopenhauerism should be esteemed a serious... play."

OF CABBAGES AND KINGS

Even The Old Salts Recognized Artistic Genius Of Augustus John

"WHAT WERE the first actions of discoverers on setting foot in an unknown land... I have often wondered," writes John Frederick Gibson in Memory Bay.

"Some, we are told, knelt down and kissed the soil. Some planted a flag with appropriate ceremony. But those things were the required fashion, dictated by things unknown. Inwardly, those pioneers must, I feel, have had some pretty mixed thoughts... They would be glad to get off their uncomfortable wooden shoes, but concerned about the native reception committee. They would be happy to see fresh fruit on the trees and fresh meat in the form of a running deer, but they would have a sudden realization of their comparatively civilized homes to which they hoped to return."

TOOK TO THE SEA

Harboring an ambition to live on the Cornish cliffs and write, Gibson was advised by an old salt, "Go out as I did and see the world. See men and women in all countries in all stages of civilization. Forget about your aim for at least 10 years and then begin to practise your art." This the budding author did, first as a sailor on tramp steamers, then as an officer in the Royal Navy. When the time came to settle down and practise his art Gibson wasn't sure whether he wanted to write or design surfers and swifter boats.

"As is often the case," he says

TRENCH COAT UNCOVERS A LOT

James Mason, the popular English actor at present film-making in Hollywood, says, "I have discovered the secret of success of Hollywood villains and gangsters! To be a heroic villain like George Raft, Alan Ladd and the rest, one must travel the trail of triumph in a trench coat. Why didn't somebody tell me?"

By PETER ELIOT

Even The Old Salts Recognized Artistic Genius Of Augustus John

"Yes," I said, "I have!"
Lady Cynthia Asquith tells a story (in Happy 1 May Remembrance) about a time when she was sitting for the famous painter in his studio and Lawrence of Arabia came to see her. After prowling about for some minutes in silence inspecting the finished and unfinished works of art with a gloomy expression, he muttered, "Mortuus est. Mortuus est. Mortuus est." Mortuus est, a tolling bell. Suddenly, raising his hand, he summed up the situation with the sepulchral utterance, "Let the dead paint the dead!"

The wonder of all this nonsense—and Lawrence was all too often full of nonsense—is that John, who had little patience anyway, didn't fling him out. Instead, Augustus asked him to sit for a drawing, an offer which Lawrence declined.

BEST EPIGRAPH

I am reminded of the neat epigraph of another illustrious Scot, That outstanding lecturer (and agnostic) Robert Ingersoll, once asked Henry Ward Beecher to write a suitable epigraph for him. Beecher took a slip of paper, wrote something quickly on it, and passed it to Ingersoll.

It read: Robert Burns.

Allies Close Big Gap In Northwest

Communist Losses In Heavy Fight For Battle Mountain Soaring High

TOKYO (AP)—Allied troops closed a dangerously big hole in the northeastern Korea warfront today. But they lost scarred Battle Mountain again in the southwest to superior North Korean forces.

The five-mile gap in the northeastern front was closed by South Korean troops, backed by U.S. planes. They linked forces in moves between Yongchon and Kyongju, road junction towns east of Taegu, central front city imperilled by 50,000 Communists from the north. The closing of the rupture in the line eased some of the pressure on Taegu.

The fighting was severe at Battle Mountain, two miles from burned-out Haman on the southwestern approach to Pusan port. North Korean losses in one day again scaled the battle mountain were heavy. But their greatest losses of the day occurred in fighting swirling near Battle Mountain. The mountain has changed hands 12 times in 16 days.

The U.S. 25th Infantry Division killed 1,500 Communists there, boosting Communist losses on the southwestern front for the week to well above 15,000 men and raising official estimates of Red losses on all fronts to 27,000 troops in eight days—about 18 per cent of their 150,000 force.

Three thousand counter-attacking North Koreans recaptured the battle mountain which dominates approaches to Masan port on the extreme southern Korea coast.

DAWN ATTACK

The North Koreans took Battle Mountain in a dawn thrust, lost it later in the day, then came back with a successful punch despite an American artillery barrage of 7,000 rounds and strikes by U.S. planes.

Rain and thickly-packed clouds which covered the Korean battlefronts Saturday morning dissolved later in the day and Allied aircraft went back into action after a 36-hour lull.

A.P. Correspondent Lelf Erickson reported 140 close-support plane flights were made, most of them on the vital northeastern front between Yongchon and Kyongju.

A.P. Correspondent Jack MacBeth reported from the Yongchon front that Allied forces welded their once broken lines late Saturday at the end of a three-day assault.

Three thousand South Koreans there rammed out gains of more than two miles southeast of Yongchon to link with American and other Republican troops punching westward from Kyongju, which is 18 miles southwest of the Red-held east coast port of Pohang.

Buried Miners Facing Hazard Of Deadly Gas

Rescue Dangerous; 15 Men Out So Far

NEW CUMNOCK, Scotland (AP)—Fifteen of 118 miners trapped 720 feet down in a Scotch coal pit since Thursday were brought safely to the surface today after being led precariously through a gas-clogged escape tunnel.

Another eight were reported waiting outside the tunnel to be brought to the surface. The first man rescued came to safety shortly after the noon hour. All were being brought through the escape tunnel with gas masks.

Rescue workers handed down breathing apparatus one-by-one to the other men, trapped by a cave-in 720 feet underground. Their return to daylight promised to be slow, since only one man at a time could get through the gas-filled escape tunnel punched through last night from an adjoining abandoned shaft.

CALL FOR MASKS

Housewives in this mining town of 6,000 were asked to bring war-souvenir respirators to the mine to speed up the rescue work. Ten of the men trapped in Thursday night's massive cave-in were feared lost. Eight escaped earlier.

The first man brought to the surface grimy with coal dust and suffering from exhaustion was identified as Gibb McCaughy, 22. He was carried out on a stretcher and taken to a hospital. He had been examined by doctors in the old mine shaft before being brought to the surface.

The rescue workers reached the trapped men Friday night, but a wall of odorless, colorless black-damp gas blocked immediate escape through the tunnel that had been bored upward through 30 feet of solid coal from the old mine shaft. The men kept in touch with the surface by telephone.

NEW PLAN TRIED

At first, attempts were made to suck the deadly fumes out with big fans. But the process was too slow and the National Coal Board decided, despite the risk, to bring out the trapped men wearing breathing apparatus.

"This procedure will inevitably be prolonged over many hours and may involve some risk," a coal board statement said. Earlier, the Coal Board had announced that since the use of the breathing apparatus required special training the risk was too great, but the fact that the process of sucking the gas out was too slow changed the plans.

Word reaching the pithead from the cave-in area was that the rest of the men would be brought up in groups of three after they scrape through the escape hole to the old shaft.

McCaughy later was in good enough shape to talk briefly to reporters at the hospital.

"The rest of the men or O.K.," he said.

IN WEARY SLEEP

Earlier reports from below said the men were in good spirits, although some were sleeping—knocked out by weariness. Others sang Scottish folk songs, or ate sandwiches and drank beer passed to them by gas-masked rescue workers through the gas-clogged escape channel.

Magpies Take Lead Spot In Soccer League

LONDON (Reuter)—Newcastle United today took over the leadership of English soccer's championship division.

Defeating Chelsea 3 to 1, the coalmen displaced Arsenal, who bowed 2 to 1 to Middlesbrough. The cup-holding gunners suffered in the encounter their first defeat of the season.

Champion Portsmouth suffered a 5 to 0 whitewash from West Bromwich Albion.

In the Second Division Birmingham and Manchester City continued their neck-and-neck race in the leadership. Both continued undefeated, Birmingham edging Preston North End 1 to 0 and Manchester doing a 5 to 1 job on Chesterfield. Southampton holds third slot after downing Leeds United 2 to 0.

Nottingham Forest added to its undefeated string, shading Port Vale 2 to 1 to remain atop Third Division South. Colchester, one of the teams added to the enlarged league, held second position, beating Brighton and Hove Albion 4 to 1.

In Third Division North Lincoln City moved up to points equality with Gateshead to head the division. Lincoln trimmed Darlington 3 to 0 while Gateshead was drawn 2 to 2 with Bradford City.

Scottish League play opened today, Glasgow Rangers, last year's champions, blanking East Fife 3 to 0 in Division A.

Robinson is the club's leading hitter despite a slump three weeks ago that cut almost 40 points off his average.

To Work Out Details With Pact Associates

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman today approved "substantial increases" in the strength of United States forces in western Europe.

In a formal statement the President said the extent of these increases, and when they will take place, will be worked out in co-operation with the U.S. North Atlantic Treaty associates.

He said the action is being taken on the recommendations of the joint chiefs of staff, with concurrence by State Secretary Dean Acheson and Defence Secretary Louis Johnson.

"The purpose of this measure," he said, "is to increase the effectiveness of our collective defence efforts and hereby insure the maintenance of peace."

Truman said a basic consideration in carry out the decision is the degree to which America's Western allies "match our actions in this regard."

The statement came on the heels of suggestions in Congressional quarters that the United States strengthen the defence forces in Western Europe against possible aggression from Soviet Russia.

Drugs Cause Death Of Girl

WINNIPEG (CP)—An allergy to drugs used in treatment of an arm injury caused the death of 17-year-old Dianne Skinner, a coroner's jury decided Friday.

Miss Kynner died in hospital Aug. 29, 27 days after she had bumped her bicycle into the open door of a parked car. The girl was thrown from the bicycle, but apparently was not hurt and rode off.

She later developed an arm thrombosis, a blood-clot ailment which medical witnesses at the inquest testified is rarely fatal.

Use of temperature-reducing penicillin and of anti-coagulants to cut down blood-clotting was discontinued four days before the girl's death, when an allergy for one or all of the drugs became apparent.

May Delay Work

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost said Friday that some of Ontario's proposed hydro developments may be postponed to help curb inflation.
